Sadat chants war to Egyptian army

By United Press International

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat told his troops for the second time in 24 hours Sunday that hope for a peaceful solution to the Middle East conflict is "finished" and that "our decision is to fight." Israel, the semi-official Middle East News Agency said in Cairo.

Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban said in Jerusalem that Israel must view Sadat's threats seriously.

Speaking to troops at a front-line air force base near the Suez Canal, Sadat for the second time since Saturday said that Egypt has decided in favor of military action against Israel. He had said repeatedly that 1971 would be the "decisive year" in which the simmering Middle East dispute would be decided peacefully or militarily.

"We are passing through a decisive stage," he told the troops. "Every hope we used to have for a peace settlement is finished, and we have no alternative but to fight to regain our land, our honor and our dignity."

"Our decision is to fight because the battle (with Israel) is the only way to regain our land and honor," Sadat said. He said the decision was made "after continuous attempts during the past few months aimed at reaching a peace settlement."

Stating the Middle East situation has "largely changed to our favor," following contacts with the United States, and explaining Egypt's position "to everybody," the mustache-ched Egyptian leader said:

"We were aware that the United States if biased to Israel, but we wanted to expose its attitude to the world. The United States has been trying, by all methods, to serve Israel's objectives and as I told your colleagues (Saturday) I tell you that I have notified the United States that we have no confidence in them any more," Sadat said.

He did not say when hostilities would be launched but called on the armed forces Saturday to "await the order to cross" the canal where there has been a U.S.-initiated cease-fire since Aug., 1970.

Terming Egypt's defeat in the 1967 Middle East war an injustice and blaming it on errors by the high command, Sadat told the troops: "But today the situation is different."

and you are the first to know it."

In Jerusalem, Eban said that Sadat had combined "military threats and political extortion" in telling Egyptian troops the time has come for battle with Israel.

"Israel must take it seriously in both contexts," Eban told newsmen in Jerusalem following an Israeli cabinet meeting.

In Cairo, political sources said Egypt will continue diplomatic efforts to solve the Middle East crisis despite Sadat's statement Saturday night that "there is no longer any hope whatsoever for peaceful solutions... our decision is to fight."

An Israeli political source in Tel Aviv called Sadat's remarks "sabre rattling to the worst degree." And Israel appointed Maj. Gen. David "Dado" Elazar, 46, a three-war veteran with a "don't give in" battle philosophy to assume command of the armed forces in January.

Eban spoke to newsmen after the weekly session of Prime Minister Golda Meir's cabinet, which discussed Sadat's threats to end the 16-month-old cease-fire.

Eban said Sadat can still seek a peaceful and honorable solution by negotiating a settlement under the auspices of U.N. special envoy Gunnar V. Jarring or through face-to-face negotiations "between sovereign states."

The political sources in Cairo said Egypt's diplomatic efforts will be aimed at obtaining U.N. General Assembly support next month for Cairo's position in the deadlocked negotiations.

Will Tocks be 'worth it'? EPA official questions

By ANDREA B. STERN
Pocono Record Reporter

HARMONY, N.J. — Citing the problems of rapid eutrophication and drawdowns which are expected to occur in the proposed Tocks Island lake, a spokesman for the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has questioned whether the "reservoir will be worth it at all."

Addressing the sixth annual meeting of the Tocks Island Regional Advisory Council at the Pavilion Restaurant in Harmony, N.J., EPA regional director Edward Furia told the group Saturday. "The impact statement has raised the questions of rapid eutrophication and drawdowns."

"They are serious issues and we concur (with the Council on Environmental Quality) for the need for further study before any additional work is done on the Tocks Island project."

On Oct. 21, CEQ had ordered the dam project be postponed until further study could be initiated on the problems of drawdown and eutrophication, following the release of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineer's massive environmental impact statement.

Clarifying his doubts concerning the project, the cost of which is now estimated at $350 million, Furia told the TIRAC members, "I don't think there's any question that Tocks Island will produce a greatly increased water supply. The question in my mind is whether that water will be worth supplying."

A lawyer and city planner specializing in environmental matters, Furia, 29, is responsible for all EPA programs in Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia.

Set up 11 months ago, EPA, set up 11 months ago, has been relegated the prime responsibility of enforcing water quality standards in the country. It is expected to have a major voice in whether the Tocks Island dam is built or not.

Acknowledging the project's critics, Furia granted, "Some conservation groups have taken the position that dams per se are bad," but added, "Nevertheless, it seems clear it is possible for man to enhance the environment."

He amplified, "It is only when we fail to see the results on the whole eco-system that we run great risks," adding that, in the past, "we have not felt the need to tailor our projects to limited resources."

Furia emphasized, "The growth of population, industry and commerce must adapt itself to the fixed resources of the earth. If we move ahead as we have in the past decades and we develop projects like we did then, the future doesn't look too bright," he warned.

In one of the first appearances of his six-week career, Furia praised the Sierra Club, one of the dam's principal opponents, for having "a very sound history of raising important issues" and commended them for having "done this country a very great service in this area."

Acknowledging that environmentalists "may have gone overboard" at times in opposing projects, he said, "What we are trying to do is to develop an open discussion of environmental issues."

Radioactive water poses no threat to Minneapolis

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI) — Minneapolis, which gets its water supply mostly from the Mississippi River, shut down its water intake gates Sunday night following the discharge of radioactive water from a nuclear power station upstream Friday.

One honest man still exists

GLENDALE, Calif. (UPI) — Loris White, 31, of Glendale believes there still is at least one honest man in the world. "I was completely shocked," White said after getting his wallet and all its contents, including $540, back in the mail. "In this day and age, I did not think there were any more honest people," he said. White lost his wallet Nov. 12 at a Sunset Boulevard shopping center.

St. Paul, Minnesota's capital, which is adjacent to Minneapolis, shut its Mississippi River intake gates earlier and officials said they would not be reopened until an all-clear is announced by the Minnesota Public Health Department.

Another discharge of water from the plant began Sunday afternoon, but its radioactivity level was estimated at only 22 per cent of the Friday discharge.

Officials said the radioactivity content of the water released was within permissible limits set by the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency and that it was not dangerous.

But Minneapolis shut down its four river intake gates and its entire water intake operation. Clayton Bach, a supervisor at the Minneapolis Water Works, said the gates would remain shut until 4 a.m. today.

The Northern States Power Co. reactor at Monticello, Minn., 30 miles upstream, discharged 10,000 gallons of radioactive water into the Mississippi Friday and officials said that water would pass by Minneapolis during the 10-hour shutdown period.

The city will not face any shortage of water, however, since it has more than 115 million gallons in storage—at least two days supply.

Ken Dugan, a research scientist with the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency, said Friday's spill released an estimated 120 microcuries of Iodine 131, and about 25 microcuries of Cobalt 25.

The Minnesota permit given the nuclear plant would allow them to dump up to 2,000 microcuries of Iodine during a week's time and 450 microcuries of Cobalt during the same period.

The second discharge from Northern States Power Co. that began Sunday was estimated at 9,300 gallons and Dugan said its radioactivity content was expected to be about 32 microcuries, or 22 per cent of the strength of the Friday discharge.

The Pollution Control Agency was running tests on samples of the water to determine the exact radioactivity and the isotopes involved.

Vietnam soldiers ready for invasion

SAIGON (UPI) — Thousands of South Vietnamese troops "moved into position" today for a new invasion of Cambodia, military spokesmen said. Military officers at the headquarters of the III Military Region denied reports, however, that the major part of the incursion was under way.

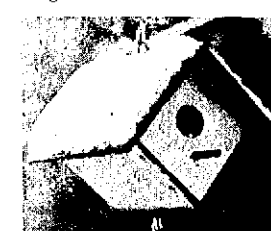

Long convoys of South Vietnamese infantry troops moved out of the Tay Ninh base camp 50 miles northwest of Saigon, and moved closer to the Cambodian border, 27 miles up Highway 22.

Thousands of government soldiers from four major commands moved into Tay Ninh late last week to set up a rear base for the new operation. "The troops moved into position for the incursion today (Monday)," said a South Vietnamese spokesman at regional headquarters at Bien Hoa, 15 miles north of Saigon. "They have not gone across the border."

Thousands of South Vietnamese troops have been in Cambodia since the first invasion by a combined allied task force in May, 1970.

Storm hits northern Monroe

STROUDSBURG — A powerful storm followed by northerly winds ripped through the eastern part of the nation and covered the northwestern portion of Monroe County with a layer of light snow. Gale and storm warnings were up on the Great Lakes and heavy snow warnings were issued for parts of New York, Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Gone South

The full thrust of the storm by-passed Monroe County but the greater Mount Pocono area experienced a continued light snowfall throughout Sunday. Accumulations of up to three inches had been expected.

At least two inches of snow fell in Syracuse, N.Y., and Jaffrey, N.H., and one inch fell at Marquette, Mich.; Youngstown, Ohio, and Pittsburgh.

Laird blames Pentagon

WASHINGTON — A reported Soviet weapons lead is a result of Pentagon waste, not efforts in Congress to trim defense money, according to Sen. Proxmire (D., Wis.) and Sen. Church (D., Idaho). Their comments followed publication of James Weapons Systems 1971-72. The authoritative manual's editors asserted that "Russia now has the initiative in weapons technology." Their conclusion appear to support warnings from Defense Secretary Laird that the Soviets began leveling off space spending in 1968 to concentrate on military weapons.

AFL-CIO accuses aide

WASHINGTON — A Nixon aide was accused of trying to "falsely trump up" the impression that President Nixon got an insulting reception when he spoke to the AFL-CIO's convention Friday. An AFL-CIO official said the White House had hoped there would be boos and catcalls during the speech so "he would have been able to say we were apocryphal." But he added "their strategy didn't work. Nobody threw eggs at the president, but Charlie Colson (a White House aide) now is trying to falsely trump up his impression." The White House "meanwhile," said Americans were responding favorably to Nixon's "straight-from-the-shoulder" talk.

Pakistanis shell town

PAKISTAN — Pakistani troops shelled an Indian border town, killing five Indians and wounding six others, the Press Trust of India said. Indian forces returned the fire, the news agency said. In Dacca, East Pakistan, police said four members of a government-backed "Peace Committee" were slain by Bengali rebels in their homes.

Hotel blaze kills two firemen

BELFAST — A fire at a central London hotel damaged in a bomb explosion earlier this year killed two firemen Sunday. A fire department spokesman said the origin of the fire in the six-story Melville Hotel had not been determined. He did not rule out the possibility a bomb could have started the blaze that trapped firemen Leonard McCartney, 42, and Andrew Wylie, 30.

Sweeping tax reform proposals drawn

BY RICHARD F. JANSSEN
Dow Jones-Ottaway News

WASHINGTON — Nixon administration officials are considering an attempt to induce sweeping tax reforms at the state and local government levels.

The central idea, insiders say, is to discourage use of the property tax and encourage heavier reliance on the more productive personal income tax. Eventually this could leave the lower government units with less needed for federal grants, strategists say, but would involve major changes in the federal income tax structure itself.

The main possible approaches, fiscal experts suggest, are any one or a combination of these:

— "Piggy backing" of standardized state income taxes, which the Internal Revenue Service would collect on the same return as the U.S. income tax.
— Ending or reducing the deduction for property taxes against the federal income tax.

— Creating a more generous offset against the U.S. income tax for state income taxes.

The administration's interest was surfaced by Caspar W. Weinberger, deputy director of the Office of Management and Budget, in a speech to the Commonwealth Club in San Francisco Friday. Without indicating any possible solutions, Weinberger scathingly criticized the property tax and disclosed that "In Washington we're considering a number of proposals in addition to revenue sharing which could create incentives for state and local governments to revamp their tax structures."

At the treasury, a high official refused to say anything but "no comment" on Weinberger's disclosure. Usually, it's the treasury that takes initiatives in tax policy matters, and officials may be a bit miffed that other offices are speaking openly about sensitive internal work. The treasury is known to have done some work in this area lately, although evidentially in response to White House requests. President Nixon's plan for "revenue sharing" of about $5 billion of federal income tax with state and local governments obviously is "an important matter," Weinberger said. But he stressed that it's a matter of "the greatest importance" how the remaining $95 billion a year of state and local government revenue is collected, asserting that "it will be necessary to develop even more extensive and equally revolutionary proposals."

Among the "evils of the property tax," Weinberger said, is that it "acts as an extremely high tax on that basic component of everyone's budget, housing," thus putting home construction and improvement at a disadvantage in competing against automobiles and other purchases.

Also, the property tax doesn't expand or contract with the economy as a whole as does an income tax, and so lacks an "automatic stabilizer" effect. The property tax is "highly regressive" in that it takes a higher proportion of income from the poor than from the rich, he said, and is administered "almost randomly," with property assessments varying widely.

Border clash kills 5

NEW DELHI (UPI)—Pakistani troops shelled a border town along India's eastern frontier Sunday, killing five Indian civilians and wounding six others, Indian reports said.

The news agency Press Trust of India, quoting officials, said the Pakistanis began shelling the town of Karimganj in Assam state, about a mile from the northeastern tip of East Pakistan, at 3 a.m. Sunday.

Indian border security forces (BSF) returned the shell fire, and the exchange of fire continued through 10 a.m., according to the PTI report which quoted officials at the Assam state capital of Shillong.

An Assam police battalion in Karimganj also was hit by Pakistani small arms fire, according to the reports but the agency made no mention of any casualties among the police.

The Indian report said the civilian casualties were caused by three Pakistani shells that hit in two areas of Karimganj. The wounded were rushed to a government hospital where two were reported in serious condition. Among the wounded were a child and a teenage girl, the agency report said.

In another explosion, not connected with the border skirmishing, seven workmen were killed when a shell exploded Saturday near Chandigarh about 180 miles northwest of New Delhi. A PTI dispatch said the workmen were constructing a road at an abandoned army firing range when they struck the shell.

(In the East Pakistan capital of Dacca, police reported that four members of a government-backed "peace committee" were slain by Bengali rebels in their homes in Tajpur.

Following the Pakistani shelling, authorities imposed an indefinite curfew on the town of Karimganj, and volunteers began supervising civil defense measures in the community.

Karimganj has a population of 30,000. It has been the scene of repeated exchanges of fire between Indian and Pakistani troops since the two countries began reinforcing troops at the borders five weeks ago in the crisis stemming from the home rule rebellion by Bangla Desh insurgents in East Pakistan against federal Pakistani forces.

Death toll reaches 16 in Rio

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI)—The death count rose to 16 Sunday when rescue workers pulled more bodies from the rubble of an unfinished viaduct which collapsed onto a busy street intersection, police reported.

Ten bodies were recovered after the collapse Saturday and officials said up to 20 persons may be buried under the two giant slabs of concrete which fell onto the intersection of Paulo Frontin Avenue and Haddock Lobo Street.

So far 22 injured persons have been rescued. Of these, police said, six were hospitalized and one later died of injuries.

About 500 construction workers, firemen, engineers and dozens of policemen were involved in the rescue efforts. They used five giant cranes to shift the rubble.

Many families went to the scene to wait for the recovery of more victims while others listened to radios at home for the license numbers of newly uncovered cars.

There's nothing new to report at this time," Cerrito said. "We are getting a few tips and working on the few leads we have."

Several civic groups and the city's two newspapers are offering more than $4,000 for information leading to the "arrest and conviction of the person or persons involved."

Rochester's two Gannett-owned newspapers, the Democrat and Chronicle and the Times-Union, are offering a $2,500 reward to "assist our law enforcement agencies in their efforts to solve this brutal killing," according to Eugene C. Dorsey, general manager of both papers.

A group calling itself the Citizens for a Decent Community is offering $1,000 and the local Ibero-American Action League is putting up $500. The owner of a small candy store near the child's home is offering a $100 reward.

Justice Dept. force 41,742

Female employees total only 243

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Under orders to hire more women for top-paying government jobs, the Justice Department has surveyed its female staff and found only 243 women out of 41,742 employees earning $15,000 or more. Three of the highest paid women work for FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover.

Miss Helen W. Gandy, now past the mandatory retirement age of 70, is listed as Hoover's executive assistant. She has a Grade 17 government rank carrying a paycheck of between $32,546 and $36,000.

Hoover, 76, earns $42,500. His senior staff of 11 assistant directors are Grade 18's earning approximately $36,000, the same as most assistant attorneys general.

The only other woman in the department with as high a rank as Miss Gandy is Mrs. Paula A. Tennant, appointed by President Nixon to the eight-member U.S. Board of Pardon and Parole.

Miss Gandy's tenure as private secretary to Hoover apparently dates back to his appointment as the head of the FBI May 10, 1924. She is in the same category as Associate Director Clyde A. Tolson, who elected to serve past his 70th birthday May 22, 1970.

Salaries of senior secretaries to the top executives of the nation's largest private industrial corporations range between $15,000 and $20,000, about the same as top government secretaries who have the job classification of "secretary."

Of just seven women in the Justice Department with a Grade 16 rank, paying between $28,129 and $35,633, two also work in Hoover's office. Described as "administrative assistants," they are Dorothy Skillman and Edna M. Holmes.

Hoover will not permit women to be FBI agents because of the alleged danger but is currently being sued by a woman to relax that rule.

There also are no women U.S. marshals, but the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs (BNDD) recently swore in its first female narcotics agent.

The five women who have the same Grade 16 status as Hoover's "office assistants" include Beatrice Rosenberg, chief of the appellate section of the criminal division, whose name was among those recently mentioned for the Supreme Court.

The Office of Management and Budget recently issued a directive to all government departments and agencies to hunt for talented women for top government jobs, particularly in the Grade 16 level.

The Justice Department has 9,687 employees who are Grade 12 and above. The 243 women in this category represent just 2.5 percent of the total though women comprise 34 percent of the total department personnel.

Newspaper uncovers wrongdoings

Shapp orders probe of corruption

HARRISBURG (UPI)—Gov. Milton J. Shapp Sunday ordered state Attorney General J. Shane Creamer and the state Crime Commission to open an immediate investigation into alleged police corruption in Philadelphia.

The Sunday edition of the Philadelphia Inquirer ran an editorial requesting the inquiry.

"On the basis of the material thus far revealed, I believe there is sufficient cause to conduct such an investigation, not only to end whatever corruption may exist but also to clear the good names of thousands of policemen and their families who have no connection whatever with the alleged wrong doing and who also desire to have it eliminated," Shapp said in a statement.

Shapp said he asked Creamer to convene the Crime Commission immediately to set up guidelines for the inquiry and to cooperate with the district attorney's office and other local law enforcement officials.

Shapp stressed that the investigation should not end "with a situation in which a few spectacular prosecutions might take place, but one which would get to the roots of any corruption which might exist and produce concrete proposals for any changes which may be shown to be necessary."

He said "only through a thorough and cool-headed analysis will justice be done and the public be served."

Bush believes charter revision may save UN

NEW BEDFORD, Mass. (UPI)—George W. Bush, the chief U.S. representative to the United Nations, said Sunday revision on the U.N. charter may be the only step which can save the body.

"If the U.S. is going to support the U.N., the way I want to see it supported, we've got to unlock the Pandora's Box (of charter revision) even if it means grief, because I don't see how it can survive with the limited support we've got," Bush told a broadcast interview.

The ambassador said there had been a lot of recent talk about an independent Formosa movement.

"If there was such a movement," he said, "you still have to say that before an independently established Taiwan came in, that it would have to get by Peking on the Security Council. So at some point there has to be accommodation if they're not going to be vetoed in the Security Council."

Bush said a new U.N. charter might include Japan in the Security Council. "Japan has been agitating to be a member of the Security Council and as long as we're going to start it over again, perhaps that would be something that would be considered."

Parochial teachers set strike

NEW YORK (UPI)—Lay teachers employed by New York's Roman Catholic Parochial schools voted overwhelmingly Sunday to strike Monday, but church officials said the schools will remain open.

At a meeting in the Commodore Hotel, 679 teachers—fewer than half of the 1,400 members of American Federation of Teachers Local 2092—voted 481 to 198 to reject the New York archdiocese's latest contract offer.

When Local President Barry Ryan asked whether the teachers wanted to strike, the crowd roared "Yes!" Few dissenting voices were heard.

Robert Dunne, a member of the archdiocese's negotiating team, said the strike will not close New York's 325 parochial grammar and high schools, which serve about 150,000 students. He said he does not know when contract talks will resume.

"The schools will be open tomorrow as usual," Dunne said. "We are waiting to see the effect of the strike before we resume bargaining."

Council rule indefinite

BANGKOK (UPI)—The National Executive Council, set up in last Wednesday's bloodless coup d'etat, will rule Thailand for an indefinite period, a council spokesman said Sunday.

He said the council would probably rule for three or four months until a cabinet is appointed to administer under an interim constitution while a permanent constitution is drafted.

The spokesman firmly denied published reports that the council, headed by Field Marshal Thanom Kittikachorn, would rule for the next five years, the period covered by Thailand's third economic development plan.

Capp hearing scheduled today

EAU CLAIRE, Wis. (UPI)—A preliminary hearing on morals charges against cartoonist Al Capp is scheduled Monday under what are said to be the strictest guidelines ever imposed in a Wisconsin courtroom, especially for a preliminary hearing.

Capp, creator of the cartoon strip "Li'l Abner," is charged with sodomy, attempted adultery and indecent exposure during an alleged incident April 1 at the University of Wisconsin-Eau Claire before Capp was scheduled to speak.

Business groups urge tax repeal

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Two agriculture and business-oriented groups Sunday called for elimination of the 10 per cent surtax on imports, while on the domestic front, the price commission faced a decision Monday on how much coal prices could rise to meet a hefty mine wage increase.

The plea by the Committee for Economic Development and the Agriculture Committee of the National Planning Commission focused new attention on the import surtax, placed on most imports in an effort to give the United States a better balance of payments. Public attention largely has been centered on decisions of the pay board and price commission, the two boards overseeing the second phase of President Nixon's economic policies.

The pay board on Friday approved the first year of a contract between the soft coal industry and the United Mine Workers calling for a wage increase in excess of 15 per cent, almost triple the board's guideline of 5.5 per cent per year.

The price commission called a morning meeting today to decide how much coal operators will be allowed to raise prices to meet the cost of the wage increase. The New York Times reported in its Sunday edition that the coal operators would ask for an 8.5 per cent increase. The commission's general price-increase guideline is 2.5 per cent.

The New York-based Committee for Economic Development, made up of major corporation executives and educators, called for the removal "without undue delay" of the 10 per cent surtax on U.S. imports.

In a lengthy report on "the United States and the European Community," CED said the surtax "should be considered only as an acceptable realignment of currency exchange rates is achieved."

But CED acknowledged that the temporary existence of the surtax "does provide an opportunity for the resolution of some of our present (economic and trade) difficulties."

The agriculture committee of the National Planning Association (NPA) called for immediate removal of the surtax.

"Removal of the surcharge, across the board, should not be further delayed," the statement added.

Vagrant bombs train station

ZURICH (UPI)—A disgruntled vagrant who hated police and authorities touched off a homemade bomb in Zurich's main railway station late Saturday night, injuring 14 persons. Damage was estimated at $250,000, police said Sunday.

Claude Baumann, chief of Zurich's cantonal (state) police, said the 14 injured—including four women—suffered only minor cuts and shock. Ten of them were treated at the Cantonal hospital and released.

Twenty-five minutes after the blast, a 47-year-old unemployed laborer walked into a police station and confessed to setting off the blast, Baumann said.

He said the man has had repeated brushes with officialdom since 1960 and clearly acted "out of hatred toward the police and local authorities."

Baumann said the device was the largest ever detonated in Zurich. It contained about 17.6 lbs. of powerful explosives.

Young girl screams help as motorists ignore pleas

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI)—Police here Sunday were piecing together "the few leads we have" in the strangulation death of a 10-year-old girl whose frantic pleas for help were ignored by passing motorists.

The body of Carmen Colon of Rochester, who was missing for two days after she went on an errand for her grandmother, was discovered Thursday in a field in the town of Riga, 10 miles south of here. The child's skull had been fractured and she had been raped and strangled.

Monroe County Chief of Detectives Michael Cerrito said Sunday that a man and woman told police they saw a partially-clad child fitting Carmen's description "waving her hands frantically, trying to wave down passing cars" on a heavily traveled expressway.

Police estimate that at least 100 persons saw the youngster running along Interstate 490 about an hour after she was last seen by her relatives. No one notified police. Authorities believe the girl had been abducted and was trying to get away from her captor. The assailant apparently backed up on the highway, grabbed the girl and drove away, police said.

"There's nothing new to report at this time," Cerrito said. "We are getting a few tips and working on the few leads we have."

Several civic groups and the city's two newspapers are offering more than $4,000 for information leading to the "arrest and conviction of the person or persons involved."

Rochester's two Gannett-owned newspapers, the Democrat and Chronicle and the Times-Union, are offering a $2,500 reward to "assist our law enforcement agencies in their efforts to solve this brutal killing," according to Eugene C. Dorsey, general manager of both papers.

'Ambitious' maritime program admittedly lagging

BY DONALD R. LARRABEE
Offaway New Service
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — It was roughly one year ago that the Nixon Administration broke a huge bottle of bubbly over the most ambitious maritime shipbuilding program in U. S. history. Today, the program is hardly off the ways and Federal officials admit it is lagging.

The Nixon plan to revitalize the U. S. merchant marine was resoundingly passed by Congress and hailed by the shipbuilding industry as a giant step toward restoring the Nation to the rank of a first-rate maritime power.

No one questioned the need but perhaps the promise of 300 new American merchant ships, at the rate of 30 a year for the next ten years, was too much to expect, particularly in the shaky economy of the past year. Maritime officials are disappointed but not discouraged.

"We had all hoped to be further down the track than we are at the moment," Assistant Commerce Secretary Andrew E. Gibson commented in an interview. "But I believe most of the start-up problems have been resolved and are behind us."

Gibson, who functions in the subcommittee as maritime administrator, said the new program would be further along if it had not been for the softening of the tanker market, poor earnings of American flag operators and the resulting difficulty in getting investment capital to undertake new construction.

He hopes for greater progress on the $5 billion shipbuilding program as the Nixon economic plans take effect, notably the seven per cent investment tax credit. Also, he noted that the upward float of the Japanese yen and the German mark have raised shipbuilding prices in two low-cost foreign shipbuilding centers whose prices are used in calculation of the U. S. construction differential subsidy (CDS). As a result, Gibson said, the domestic shipbuilding industry will be measurably helped in meeting the lower CDS ceilings under the new law.

Gibson, incidentally, no longer talks in terms of building 30 ships a year but rather "the equivalent of" 30 ships a year.

It means simply that the emphasis is going to be on larger tankers and cargo container ships with greater capacity, rather than numbers of ships.

"The original plans were based on projections of 800,000 ton tankers, rather than 250,000 tons," he explained. "We are going to be building bigger ships. We will be spending the same amount of money for more capacity and fewer numbers."

In the first year, the Maritime Administration entered into contracts totaling $400 million for 12 new ships and conversions of some 11 conventional freighters into container ships. This is a record high. Of the total costs, $171 million will be borne by the government — the largest commitment made in a single year since the inception of the subsidy program.

Gibson is devoting much of his time these days to prodding the American shipyards. He says they can no longer simply develop designs and sit back to wait for ship operators to come to them with new construction proposals.

"I am convinced that the yards are going to have to become far more aggressive and knowledgeable in selling their product," Gibson said. "The American shipbuilding industry has never sold against foreign competition. Our shipbuilders are just learning to do it because there is a Federal program to support it."

The evidence in the Maritime Administration's files shows that much of the success of the European and Japanese builders is due to their ability to provide attractive terms of payment and interest rates for their customers.

One way this can be done, he suggests, is by putting together multi-ship, multi-owner package deals that provide the potential purchaser with appealing unit prices. In the last analysis, he says, the terms of financing the construction of a ship can be as important as the eventual contract price.

Council meeting interesting one

The East Stroudsburg Borough Council has had some interesting meetings in the past, but they will pale alongside the special meeting scheduled for Tuesday night.

That meeting was called to consider the case of Police Chief Donald Quick or, more properly, Mayor E.H. Staples' veto of an ordinance providing certain benefits for the police department and setting the mandatory retirement age at 55.

We doubt that Staples has any real quarrel with the sections of the ordinance that deal with police benefits; he has been working for increased benefits for "his boys" for some time. But that retirement age provision... that's something else again.

Council apparently has decided they no longer want Quick heading up the police department. Sensing a bitter battle to retain Quick, they adopted a tactic of lowering the retirement age from 60, undercutting the 58-year-old chief — a move Staples was quick to veto.

How to get vote?

And that's where the interest comes in. Council must come up with a majority-plus-one vote to override the mayor's veto, which means a 5-1 vote. The problem there is that two men, council president Roy Lloyd and Wade Arnst, voted against the ordinance in the first place, and are expected to vote the same way when the try is made to override Staples' veto.

But the fact that council decided not to vote last Tuesday, and opted for an executive session, then a delay in the vote instead, indicates members of the pro-ordinance faction feel they can sway either Lloyd or Arnst to their side.

There is no doubt considerable pressure being brought to bear right now on those two gentlemen. Those four members of council who voted for the ordinance have wanted Quick out of the police department for some time. They are not apt to retreat that easily.

Lloyd's note appears to be the crucial one, and it is possible he is the one feeling the greatest pressure right now. As council president, the onus is on him to go along with the majority. His position is the more difficult because he heads the council, is the most visible to the public and owes his position in part to the council's majority.

Unfortunate circumstance

Whatever happens Tuesday night, though, it is still unfortunate that the welfare of the policemen in the East Stroudsburg department hangs in the balance. Now, in addition to the trauma of not knowing from one week to the next where their allegiance will lie, they are faced with being deprived of the benefits to which they are due. It seems doubtful any sort of pension plan will pass the present council without attempts to add on a rider easing Quick out, one way or the other.

The spotlight is on the three top officials in the borough — Quick, Staples and Lloyd — but as on any other stage, there can be only one heroic faction. Tuesday night's meeting will produce one, and there lies the interest.

Tough decision

"Why aren't you going with Mary any more?"
"Well, she wasn't pretty, she didn't have any money, and she married Jimmy Wilson. So I just took the advice of my friends and dropped her."

Wallace dropout?

WASHINGTON — Switch in Wallace tactics? Insiders at the Democratic National Committee are increasingly convinced Gov. Wallace will not be a presidential candidate. They see him entering several Democratic primaries, including Florida, to test his strength and influence the policies of the regular contenders.

Why should Wallace become a political dropout when his national support remains as high as it was in 1968? Answer is that he is visibly losing his base of support in the South. Evidence: Recent polls show that in four of the Southern states he carried three years ago — Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi — popular Wallace support has slipped badly and that Nixon decisively tops Wallace in every one of these states.

If this trend continues, Wallace wouldn't dare expose himself to such discrediting in his home territory.

CAN NIXON CARRY THE WHOLE SOUTH? This is what the Democrats are really worried about. They see the majority of Southern voters, who back the new breed of Southern Democratic moderates, as nearer Nixon than they are to either Wallace or any of the probable Democratic presidential candidates.

Why? Because Nixon has made good his campaign promises to the South:
1 — Southern textiles protected by voluntary Japanese quotas.
2 — Strong White House opposition to bus-ing.

3 — One Southerner and two "strict constructionists" named to the Supreme Court.
Any more White House "Southern strategy" would seem to be unnecessary.

BUT WHAT OF THE ECONOMY? Won't that be the controlling issue? It will. But the leading economist of the Kennedy and Johnson eras, Walter Heller, former chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, gives the Democrats no political comfort. His candid, professional judgment is that the economy will be plus for Nixon next year. Recently, unemployment has moved from six per cent to 5.8 per cent and Heller sees more of the same in prospect.

NO EARLY RESUMPTION OF ARAB-ISRAELI WAR. Reason: Moscow doesn't want it; Washington doesn't want it. For a time at least each will help ensure it doesn't happen. The Soviets want no Mideastern war to block or complicate the Nixon summit this spring. Nixon wants no Mideastern war to block or complicate his re-election in the fall. Short-run outlook: No peace, no war.

SOME ECONOMIC REALITY IN RUSSIA. And China: Russian agriculture is so backward it takes nine times more labor and 50 per cent more land to produce three-fourths of what U.S. farms produce. Famed Soviet physicist Andrei Sakharov reports that the economic gap between U.S. and USSR is widening in oil drilling, gas drilling, electric power production, in chemistry and in computer technology.

Every non-Communist nation on the periphery of the People's Republic, from South Korea to Indonesia, has a higher standard of living than Communist China.

ALLENDI IN TROUBLE IN CHILE: Many Chileans are becoming disillusioned with their Marxist president — politically and economically. Unable to cope with his nation's economic miseries, Allende is seeking parliamentary changes which will keep him in power. Fidel Castro praised him highly, but Castro drew small crowds and few cheers in his public appearances in the Chilean capital.

Let surgeon say

Are some fibroid tumors of the womb more serious than others?

How does one know if surgery is absolutely necessary?

Mrs. C.V., Kans.

Dear Mrs. V.:

Fibroid tumors of the uterus, or womb, vary in size and therefore in the severity of pressure symptoms they may produce.

Some of these benign, or non-cancerous, growths are attached to the outside of the womb. Others originate in the muscle wall itself. A few are attached to the inner lining of the uterus.

When they become large and are responsible for unusual bleeding between and during menstrual cycles, surgery is considered.

Frequently, a large fibroid may press upon the bladder and cause urinary symptoms. Similarly, the large bowel can be compressed, causing bowel movement difficulty.

When once the fibroid is known to be present, it is kept under constant surveillance by the doctor for marked increase in size.

Only the doctor can determine the safe and proper time for surgery. Once he comes to that conclusion it is unwise to delay.

Consultation with another doctor can give added assurance. All doctors welcome the value of combined medical judgment.

Why is the liver so important? Can it be replaced by any other organ if it becomes diseased? We are studying this in biology. Miss T.J.C.

The Pennsylvania Story

Stubbornness costly

HARRISBURG — The massive North Office Building in the Capitol Complex on Capitol Hill here in Harrisburg has been undergoing extensive alterations for close to two years.

All the time the workmen were ripping out walls, tearing up flooring, and generally renovating the huge structure, the Public Utility Commission stubbornly maintained its quarters in the building.

Curiously enough, other governmental agencies moved out to temporary quarters while the renovating proceeded but not the PUC.

As a result, the contractors had to work around the Public Utility Commission, shifting its operations as necessary while the alterations went on. But the contractors tolerated the situation — at a price.

At a recent meeting of the General State Authority, one of the items on the agenda was a request for approval of a bill for $353,700 submitted by the contractor because the North Office Building had not been vacated per the contractual requirements and the contractors were put to the extra expense as a result.

Auditor General Robert P. Casey, a member of the General State Authority Board, wanted to know if the contractor's bill was not the result of the PUC's refusal to move out while the renovations were made.

He was told by GAS Executive Director Robert (Pop) Jones that this was so.

Casey then asked what would have happened had the PUC moved out while the alterations were made to the North Office Building and the reply was that it would have been necessary to pay rent estimated at about $200,000 annually.

Casey said that if it had been rent, it would have been an operating expense and thus could have been charged back to the public utilities the PUC monitors. Again, Jones agreed with Casey's observation.

The Auditor General then suggested that an attempt should be made to recover the $353,700 from the utilities in the form of increased assessments, as permitted by law.

Gov. Milton J. Shapp, as the state's Chief Executive and president of the GSA Board, directed his legal counsel and legal counsel for GSA to work out the details.

Casey's basic position:

Taxpayers be stuck
Why should the taxpayers be stuck with the bill for $353,700 incurred because the Public Utility Commission refused to vacate the North Office Building during the period of alterations? The utilities, in his view, should pay that bill, not the taxpayers.

Unquestionably the proposition espoused by Mr. Casey is interesting in a number of respects.

Certainly he is to be commended for exerting every effort to save taxpayer monies, as is his Excellency for directing his legal lieges to look into the matter.

But in all this perhaps at least one point is worth bearing in mind — namely, if the public utilities are to be expected to pick up the tab in the form of increased assessment, won't they in turn be expected to pass such additional costs on to the consumer in the form of increased billings, etc.?

In other words, aren't the "taxpayers" likely to be "stuck with the bill for $353,700," as Mr. Casey phrases it, no matter how you look at it — after all, most taxpayers in the end are utility consumers one way or another.

Be all this as it may, Pennsylvania's fiscal watchdog is at least watchdogging!

Society's fault

WASHINGTON — Until people started carrying away bits and pieces of the Kennedy Culture Center here I had no idea how culturally-deprived we were in this country.

Of course, the police here take a dim view of folks taking home souvenirs of their cultural night out, but, then, police always take the short view of these things.

Besides which, as any sociologist would tell you, the thefts committed by average and above-average citizens at the JFK Center are quite understandable. Countless expensive studies have shown us that people who come from poor families often turn out to be poor themselves. (I'm not sure, but I think the study which brought us to this amazing conclusion cost $113,000.)

Anyway, that study, in conjunction with a study showing that it is poor people more often than rich people who steal things, allow us to understand the root causes of all crimes.

Everyone in our society now knows that a criminal is simply the victim of his environment and if people lack certain things they will have to steal them and, in the end, it is society which is at fault.

Which brings us back to the petty crime wave at the JFK Center. Obviously, the people who have been stealing bric-a-brac, etc., at the Center are victims of their environment. Oh, yes, they may be well enough off in material things, but they apparently have had no culture in their lives and, therefore, are starved for it.

Can they, then, be blamed for taking a little bit of it home with them? Certainly not! No doubt there will be those — the law-and-order types — who will demand heavier fines and longer jail sentences for culture thieves. But this is not the answer. Cracking down will not eliminate the cause of culture crime.

What is needed, if we are to attack this in an enlightened way, is a government program to bring culture into heretofore deprived middle-class and, even, upper-class homes. There are a number of ways that this can be done in typical government fashion.

Social workers should go out and distribute albums of symphonic music and inexpensive (but accurate) copies of works of art to homes in Georgetown. There should be a Culture Stamp Center, where people could get free stamps which could be "spent" at book shops, art and music stores and other places in the culture business.

And, since pieces of the Culture Center itself are so popular, a whole industry (government subsidized), might be started to reproduce them. Then, plaster copies of plaster wall scones, small vases, bits of carpet, etc., could be distributed free to anyone who buys a ticket to see something at the Center. It is time we did something for the undercultured.

Some countries don't need foreign aid; what they need is first aid.

State legislator develops alternate busing program

HARRISBURG (UPI) — An alternate to the controversial busing of children to achieve school desegregation has been developed by Rep. Max Homer, D-Allegheny.

Instead of traveling to a distant school each day, youngsters could study in their neighborhood schools but attend cultural sessions with students from other schools once a week.

Homer, a former college professor with a doctorate in education administration, chaired hearings on busing in Pittsburgh. He became convinced during the emotional sessions that Pennsylvanians would not accept it.

"Busing is unworkable," he said. "Both blacks and whites don't want their children bused out of local schools."

Under Homer's plan, the weekly sessions would include arts, crafts, religious and cultural study, and a noon meal focusing on all racial and ethnic groups.

"The children would share in an integrated experience—not just blacks and whites, but Poles, Italians, Jews, all getting together and sharing experiences," he said. "It would not be a permanent busing routine which would cost huge amounts of money and destroy neighborhood schools."

"I think it would be adopted by all the parents and all the people. And I think it would work."

Homer would like to see the plan tested in Pittsburgh. He said the people have voiced strong opposition to the busing which already is taking place, and the Human Relations Commission is pressing for even more.

"Pittsburgh spends $2 million a year for racial busing in addition to normal busing costs," he said. "That would be enough to pay a staff and fund the program I am advocating."

Homer said he felt other communities would initiate the program quickly if the Pittsburgh pilot worked. He suggested

Welfare recipients earn money

HARRISBURG (UPI) — The 36,450 relief recipients placed in work-training programs by the Public Welfare Department over the last seven years have earned about $15 million.

Department Secretary Helene Wohlgenuth said how well the programs have succeeded is evidenced by the job placement of more than 69 per cent of the recipients who completed training.

"Manpower training program enrollees have expressed their appreciation for having been provided the two elements they desire most," Mrs. Wohlgenuth said, "a feeling of fulfillment for being needed to provide a service and a feeling of personal dignity for being able to earn and control their own incomes."

Four of the five work training programs are funded jointly by Federal and State Governments. The fifth is supported entirely with state money.

ed schools might want to expand the program to two half-days a week once it was established.

The plan could be implemented without state legislation if funds came through existing channels, Homer said. But he noted its success would depend largely on the support of the Human Relations Commission.

The commission has ordered 26 school districts to desegregate in the past three years. Sixteen communities, including Allentown, Harrisburg, York, Chester, Johnstown, Norristown, and McKeesport, are busing children to achieve racial balance in their schools.

The commission has been the driving force behind busing in Pennsylvania. Homer predicted the legislature is ready to stop it.

An anti-busing bill was introduced in the House last week to strip the Commission's authority to interfere with the public schools. Rep. Charles Caputo, D-Allegheny, is prime sponsor.

"The law says you can't purposely segregate schools," he said. "But there is a gray area as to whether the Human Relations Commission has the power to mandate racial balance."

That is what they are doing, but I don't think the people are going to accept that mandate. It is up to the courts to decide."

Homer said if the commission continues to press for complete racial balance which requires busing, people will demand that the General Assembly weaken the commission's power.

Welcome planned for Sexton

WARREN, Mich. (UPI)—S. Sgt. John C. Sexton Jr., held prisoner more than two years by the Viet Cong, comes home today to a gala welcome by a brass band and cheerleaders from his high school and a Thanksgiving dinner with his family.

Sexton was scheduled to be released from the Denver, Colo., hospital where he has been recuperating since October. After changing planes in Chicago he is scheduled to arrive at Detroit's Metropolitan Airport at 2:03 p.m. EST.

The high school band of 75 members was to greet Sexton as he steps off his plane. A news conference with Sexton and his parents has been arranged at the airport.

Then, Sexton and his family will head for Warren and more fanfare staged by hometowners. Sexton will spend Thanksgiving and the days following with his parents and will presumably get the turkey dinner with all the trimmings which was one of his first requests when he walked out of the Vietnamese jungle after being released by the Viet Cong.

Then, starting Dec. 4, it will be John Sexton Week in Warren—complete with a homecoming parade.

Partnership misunderstandings are a dime a dozen, even in the best of companies. Consider this deal from the match between France and Nationalist China in the 1969 world championship.

With Boulenger North and Svare South for France at the first table, the bidding went as shown and South became declarer at two clubs! Svare went down three — the only tricks he scored were a diamond, a diamond ruff, a spade

New York's Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — The sports mob whispers that Colts' owner Carroll Rosenbloom wants dearly, as it would be indeed, to buy the New York Giants grid team. . . .

Lelman's baby is due in March. . . . Wendy's half-sister, Heidi (both are Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's sprigs), expects hers (and Jones Harris') in March; Jones is Ruth Gordon's son. . . .

The "Hello, Dolly" film lost more than $15,000,000. . . . Songwriter Carolyn Leigh's recent fascination for sports (especially basketball) inspired her to write a flock of funny material about the silly side of the perspiration arts, and now she's sold it as a TV special. . . .

Agriculture holds a Dec. 8 bash at the Tavern on the Green in Central Park here in Manhattan. . . .

Henry Luce III dined Australian Prime Minister William McMahon at the Time-Life Building's Tower Suite. The Down Under statesman stayed 20 minutes, devoured only a Coke and sandwich. . . .

be patient with George: he's in "The Hospital." That's his new movie. . . .

First stars signed for the Playboy ski-sun resort in Great Gorge, New Jersey: Ann Margret and Anthony Newley. . . .

Sugar Ray Robinson won't get into an elevator, nor will Dean Martin, a pair of devout height-frights: but top heavyweight contender George Foreman always stays on the top floor of any hotel. . . .

Sheila Smith leaves "Follies" as soon as the "Some Like It Hot" musical starts rehearsing, if ever: she'll be "Sue," leader of the all-girl band. . . .

Yvonne De Carlo — and triples as standby for Vivian Blaine in Hal's other long-play hit, "Company." . . .

Broadway sidewalk watch hustlers offer phony "name" brand merchandise in the stepped-up Yule bah-humbug season. . . .

Henry Fonda can't find a new play, so he's reviving Bill Saroyan's "The Time of Your Life," delightful almost-vandeville which caused Bill to refuse all drama prizes some 30 years before George C. Scott imitated the subject. . . .

Fonda (believed directing "Caine Mutiny Court Martial" starring John Forsythe and Hume Cronyn) has decided against invading Broadway with "The Trial of A. Lincoln," in which he appeared in L.A. and Detroit with New York hopes rising and sinking. . . .

Homosexuals slink tentatively out of the closets to celebrate a "liberation" you sense they really fear. The critics, anxious to prove their open-mindedness greet them as long-lost half-brothers-half-sisters without mentioning that in the history of all regions (Jewish, Christian, Moslem, Hindu notably) homosexuality is looked on sorrowfully but firmly as perversion. . . .

masters the double-putdown; "New York is John Lindsay's Chappaquiddick." Thus are both Lindsay and Teddy downput. Pete Hamill puts down virtually everyone in sight except Shirley Maclaine. Gay Talese in his "Honor Thy Father" fact-novel about the Joe Bananas Mafia family finds the Mafia nicer than pictured by all authorities from Federals to cops on the beats. Thus the putdown proceeds. . . .

TOO YOUNG: (Q). I am working in a town that is new to me. Several months ago I met a very nice couple. They are quite a bit older than I am and have come to be like parents to me. They invite me to their home frequently, to eat or just to visit. . . .

They have a daughter, a fascinating young lady, age 12. I am afraid I have fallen in love with her. The thought of her obsesses me. Weeks ago my feeling toward her ceased to be a brother-sister feeling. . . .

I've told her about it but I'm not sure she understands. She is always happy to see me, and doesn't want me to go away. But she does not seem to see that at 19 I need a lot more than a nice, innocent 12-year-old girl can be expected to give me. . . .

I'm losing sleep over her. Please tell me what to do.

Obsessed in Delaware year-old and start sleeping again. . . .

You can remain her friend, and maybe in seven or eight years she will be ready to receive your attentions. But by that time, I bet, you will be fulfilling married to someone several years older than she. . . .

GIRL ASKS BOY: (Q). If a girl asks a guy to a school function, like the prom, who should buy the tickets? The guy has finished school and we are going steady. . . .

Senior Girl in Texas

(A). He may offer to buy the tickets. If he does and if you know he can afford them, let him. But be sure to thank him. . . .

If he doesn't, buy them yourself, in advance, and give them to him in advance, so he will know what the score is. . . .

WEEKEND BEER: (Q). My mother and father worry me so much. They go out on Saturday and Sunday and drink beer. My brother, who is 22, drinks it, too. I don't. Mother is all right, but Dad gets to hollering and shouting. Sometimes at me. I am 18 now and it upsets me for him to holler at me. . . .

I tell them not to drink so much, but they don't listen to me. They just go on drinking. Now, every time they will let me, I just stay at home by myself where it is quiet and . . .

Seeing less of your subteen and more of your nearly-20's, you will think less of the 12-there is nobody to holler at me. Please tell me what I can do. . . .

Unhappy Girl in New Mexico

(A). Try talking seriously with your parents at home during the week, when they are not drinking. This is more likely to have some effect on them than chiding them in public. Do not expect them, however, to make any major changes in their habits and customs at this time of their lives. . . .

More important, find a life of your own, including a boy friend. This will help you to get away from parents on weekends, and it will speed the day when you can have a home of your own. Then you can live as you wish, and not be tied to their way of life. . . .

CUTICLES: (Q). My cuticles are hard and dry. How can I soften them so they will push back easier? Also, should I push the cuticles back on my toenails? . . .

Ten Fingers, Ten Toes in Maryland

(A). Buy a good cuticle cream and use it on both your fingernails and toenails. Yes, push the toenail cuticles back. Work on your toenails as carefully and thoroughly as you do on your fingernails. But shape them straight across rather than in a curve. . . .

Copa singer Jerry Vale bought a partnership in a hamburger-stand chain (is that the way McDonald's started?) . . .

Natalie Wood's side of the divorce is anxious to invite estranged hubby Richard Gregson's secretary to drop by the divorce proceedings. A regular guest shot. In the head? . . .

Remember The Petty Girl? Once so sexy Esquire mag was needed legally for its daring painted-hussy look? George, now 77, said at the 37th St. Hideaway he hasn't drawn one of the provocative lasses in three years. Decided he needed a rest when he found himself painting a girl diving into a pool "in order just to have her legs to draw." . . .

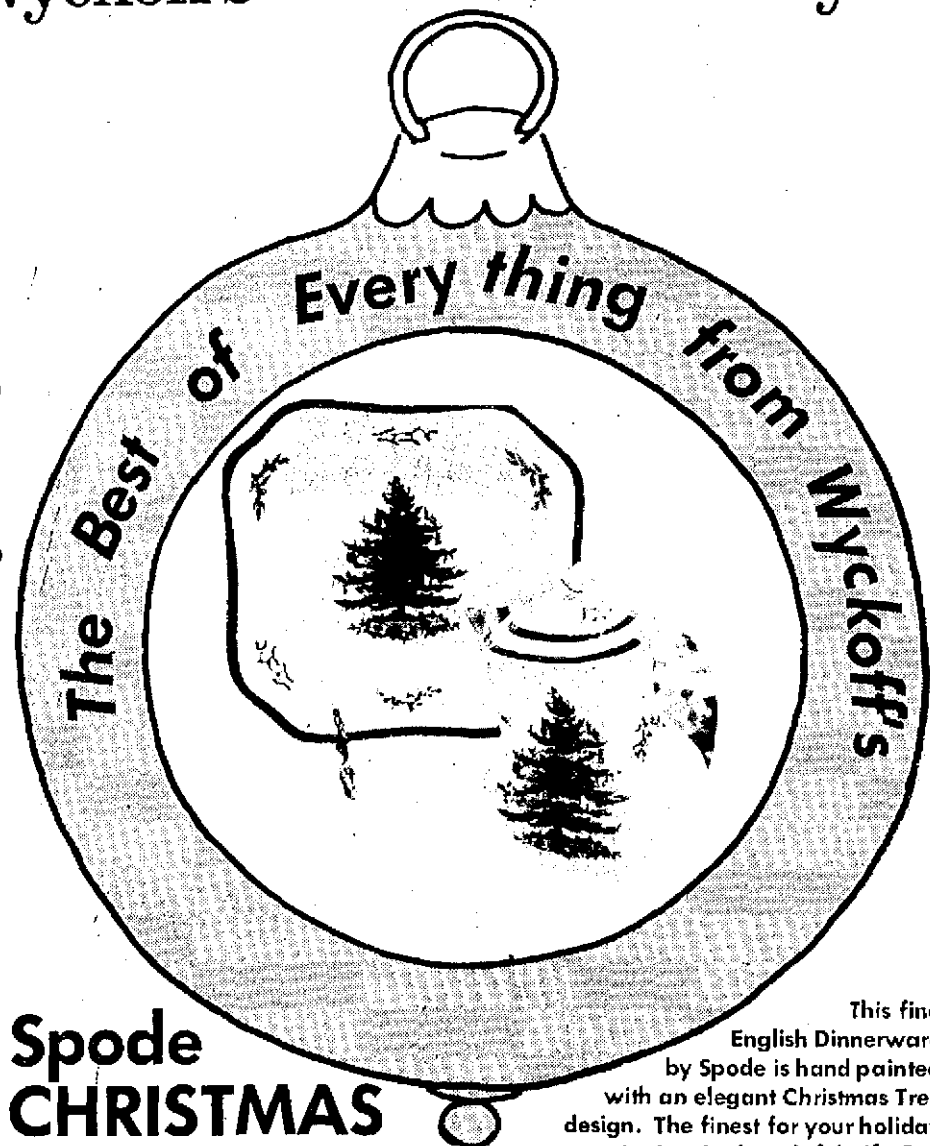

The George C. Scott-Trish Van Devere romance started in Spain a couple of flicks ago. It's on still in San Francisco where Trish is filming "One Is a Lonely Number" . . .

Meanwhile George C. has no inhibitions about his disaffection for the method mummies in the Actors Studio: "It performed one of the greatest disservices to the theater in its entire history and probably ruined the potential of more good actors than any other force," George doesn't have much more fondness for British actors. . . .

Margie Ann Cortright wed

EAST STROUDSBURG — Miss Margie Ann Cortright, daughter of Mrs. and Mrs. Robert Eugene Cortright of East Stroudsburg R.D. 1 was married on Saturday, Nov. 20, at 1:30 p.m. to Ronald Eugene Decker.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Decker of East Stroudsburg R.D. 1.

Rev. William F. Wunder performed the ceremony at Grace Evangelical Lutheran Church, East Stroudsburg. The altar was decorated with white gladiolas and white mums.

The organ bouquet was of white gladiolas and large white chrysanthemums. Mrs. Donald Michaels was organist and Robert Wolbert soloist. He sang "And This is My Beloved," "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of ivory peau de soie trimmed with Alecon lace, with long bishop sleeves and attached chapel train. She wore a Camelot headpiece of matching lace and peau de soie embroidered with seed pearls holding full length veil of french illusion. Her flowers were a cascade of white roses and ivy.

Miss Judith Ann Burkett of Sciota, as maid of honor wore an ivory sate and brown metallic knit gown with long fitted sleeves and ruffled hemline with a matching brown metallic knit Camelot cap. She carried a single bronze chrysanthemum with brown streamers.

The bridesmaids, Mrs. Timothy Cortright, sister-in-law of the bride, of Bound Brook, N.J., and Mrs. Ronald Arndt of Saylorsburg wore similar ensembles and each carried a single bronze chrysanthemum with gold streamers.

James Kochenour of 10925 East Keswood Road, Rushwood, Philadelphia, was best man. Ushers were Timothy A. Cortright, brother of the bride, of Bound Brook, N.J., and David Hicks of Blairstown.

The bride's mother wore a champagne metallic knit dress with matching accessories. The bridegroom's mother wore an ivory metallic knit dress with matching accessories. They both had corsages of cymbidium orchids. Mrs. Milo Doud, the bride's grandmother, wore a light blue brocade jacket dress with matching accessories and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses.

Mrs. Ronald Eugene Decker

A reception was held at The Fernwood, Bushkill for about 165 guests. Bill Barth's trio supplied the music. The room was decorated with white gladiolas and chrysanthemums.

After a week's honeymoon in San Juan Puerto Rico, the newlyweds will make their home in Shawnee-on-Deleware.

For traveling the bride wore a double knit brown dress and coat ensemble with matching accessories. Her corsage was of white roses and ivy.

The bride was graduated from East Stroudsburg High School in 1967 and from East Stroudsburg State College in 1971. She is teaching first grade at Morey Annex, Stroudsburg. She is a member of the Pennsylvania State Education Association and the National Education Assn.

Mr. Decker was graduated from East Stroudsburg High School in 1965 and from Drexel University in 1970. He is working as a civil engineer for Edward C. Hess Associates Inc. He recently completed the Field Artillery Officer's basic course at Fort Sill, Okla.

Soroptimists laud young musicians

STROUDSBURG — The Soroptimist Club of Monroe County gave a standing ovation to the "Unholy Four Plus One" following their program of songs at the November dinner meeting at the Penn Stroud Motor Lodge.

The East Stroudsburg State College group was introduced by Miss Helen Brown. Buddy Snyder of the Newman Club introduced the members: Frank Kloiber, publicity; Charles Matthews, Bangor; Richard Kuklentz and John Collins, guitar; Cathy Gallagher, tubazine; Marion Niel, who played the tub, substituted for Rev. John Bendik who had been called out of town.

Included in their songs were "Tavern in the Town," "Cloudy," "We Don't Mind" and "The Man Who Will Never Return." Cathy Gallagher sang as a solo "The Seasons Go Round and Round."

An induction ceremony was held for three new members: Mrs. Nancy Shukaitis, Mrs. Josephine Manchester and Miss Helen Brown, with Jean Barthold, Ester Larsen and Anna Stem officiated.

President Jean Barthold presided at the business meeting. Madalyn Riday reported on progress for the bazaar to be held at the YM-CA Wednesday, Dec. 8. Katharine James reported that the fruitcake ordered by the club had been practically sold out, so more was ordered.

Members were asked to write their State Representatives urging the passage of House Bill 935 concerning removing billboards from along the highways.

A Christmas party will be held at the Dec. 9 meeting at the Penn Stroud Motor Inn.

Tree-trimming on agenda at St. John's

STROUDSBURG — Reports marked the meeting of the Lutheran Church Women of St. John's, Stroudsburg, including a Christmas tree trim party at the church on Sunday, Dec. 19, at 5 p.m.

The Pocono district in a gathering will be held at Grace Lutheran Church, East Stroudsburg, on Dec. 9 at 10:30 a.m.

Mrs. Jennie Meixell announced that the December birthday party would be held Dec. 1 with donations to be mailed to Mrs. Charles Grace.

Mrs. Katherine James reported on the Pocono District meeting held at the Lutheran Church, Craig's Meadow on Oct. 24.

The meeting opened with devotions on "Thank Offerings" by Mrs. Louise Gage, and closed with good wishes for the president, Mrs. Helen Korner, and her husband, who are making a trip around the world.

Honors for champions by Football Mothers

STROUDSBURG — The Stroudsburg Football Mothers Club has unveiled plans to toast the victorious Lehigh Valley Champions with Thanksgiving Day opening the events.

The first to be honored by the group will be the mothers of the senior players. The Thanksgiving Day Game will be Senior Mothers Day. Festivities will begin Thursday, Nov. 25 at 9:25 a.m.

The following mothers will be introduced to the holiday crowd by Mrs. Bernice Brown: Mrs. Roberta Adams, Mrs. Beverly Angle, Mrs. Joyce Devlin, Mrs. Jean Christman, Mrs. Jean Davis, Mrs. Jennings, Mrs. Marilyn Litts, Mrs. Fran Lutjens, Mrs. Molly McCormick, Mrs. Jean McNally, Mrs. Luis Martin, Mrs. Lorena Owens, Mrs. Arlene Silver, Mrs. Pat Smith, Mrs. Kit Somers, Mrs. Chris Upschulte, Mrs. Vivian Wells and Mrs. Ryder. Each mother will be presented with a corsage commemorating the occasion. Assisting Mrs. Brown on the committee for the event are Mrs. Freda Smith and Mrs. Nancy Uebberoth.

Thanksgiving night the football mothers will sponsor a victory dance for the league title Mounties at 8 p.m. in the Stroudsburg High School Gymnasium. The Varsity players will be the honored guests of the mothers at the victory dance. Tickets for the dance entitled, "The Huddle Hop," will go on sale at the door and are $1.25.

A featured event of the dance is the awarding of door prizes contributed by area merchants. "The Crowd" will play for the dance and refreshments will be on sale during the evening.

Mrs. Arlene Silver is chairman of the affair and is being assisted by Mrs. Betsy Ross, Mrs. Pat Smith, Mrs. Molly McCormick and Mrs. Kit Somers.

A meeting of the Football Mothers Club will be held prior to these events to finalize plans. The meeting will be held Tuesday, Nov. 23 at 8 p.m. in the library conference room of the high school. Arrangements will also be made for the Father-Son banquet scheduled for Dec. 8. Trophies will be awarded to the boys at the dinner. Mrs. Arlene Silver is chairman of the banquet.

The slate of officers for the coming '72 football season will be presented and all members are urged to be present.

With the first big snowstorm still in the future, plans for the April Shower ball for the benefit of the Burnley Workshop are being seeded.

The ball is scheduled for Wednesday, April 12 at Mount Airy Lodge with cocktails from 8 to 7:30, followed by dinner and dancing.

At a coffee for the committee held at the home of Mrs. John Ferrebee, it was announced that State Sen. Jeanette Reihman has accepted an invitation to attend.

Tickets are now available from Dianne Gruszka, 421-2454 and Roger Cauchi, 839-7133. The ticket committee will meet on Friday, Dec. 3 at the home of Mrs. Gruszka, 1301 King St., Stroudsburg, at 10 a.m.

Van Campens to mark their 64th anniversary

BARTONSVILLE — Mr. and Mrs. G. Wells Van Campen will be celebrating their 64th wedding anniversary quietly at their home in Bartonsville on Tuesday, Nov. 23.

Now housebound with a heart condition, Van Campen was probably the first person in Monroe County to drive a car. He was a test driver for the Mathewson Car, built in Wilkes-Barre, before 1907.

He is a great great-grandson of Col. Abram Van Campen whose homestead in Panahquary Twp. is to be restored in the Delaware Water Gap National Recreation Area.

Mrs. Van Campen is the former Lula Brodhead.

Miss Judith Burkett

Burkett engagement announced

SCIOTA — Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Burkett of Sciota announce the engagement of their daughter, Judith Ann, to Mitchell A. Hawk, son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Hawk, Saylorsburg.

Miss Burkett is a 1967 graduate of Pleasant Valley High School and received an associate's degree from Churchman Business College in 1971. She is employed at East Stroudsburg State College.

Her fiancé is also a 1967 graduate of Pleasant Valley High School. He served three years in the Navy and is employed at Stroud Ford.

A March wedding is planned.

Local group entertained in Tennessee

STROUDSBURG — Mrs. Betty Jo Fetherman, Mrs. Florence Marsh, Mrs. Vivian Davies and Mrs. Rose Schneider have returned from a six-day trip from the middle south where they visited Mrs. Fetherman's mother, Mrs. Fred Williams, Donelson, Tenn. where her husband is a Cutter Exchange executive.

Highlight of the trip was a visit to Nashville, known as Music City USA where they attended a performance of Grand Old Opry and toured Printer's Alley and the home of Andrew Jackson, The Hermitage.

Rev. Richard Gehman assumes church duties

STROUDSBURG — Richard J. Gehman, missionary to Kenya, Africa, is the new pastor of Berean Bible Fellowship Church of Stroudsburg. He succeeds Rev. Mr. A.L. Seifert, who has assumed fulltime duties as director of Pinebrook Bible Conference.

Both Rev. Gehman and his wife, Florence, have spent a four-year term of missionary service teaching on the faculty of Scott Theological College in Machakos, Kenya. He is a graduate of Berean Bible School, now Pinebrook Junior College, Wheaton College.

He holds a Master of Arts degree in Theology from Wheaton and a Bachelor of Divinity from Gordon. The Gehmans have assumed their duties at the church, on South Sixth Street, Stroudsburg, for an indefinite period of time. Their ultimate plans are to return to Kenya and rejoin the faculty at Scott Theological College.

Y Mothers to dine out

STROUDSBURG — The YM-CA Mothers Service Club is planning a dinner out for their Christmas party on Monday, Dec. 6. Members will assemble at the YMCA at 5:30 and after dinner will assemble at the home of Mrs. John DeVivo, Dreher Ave. where they will exchange dollar gifts.

At the recent meeting at the Y with Mrs. Marian Hoffner presiding, reports were given on the rummage sale and other club activities.

Howell's FLOWERS "Flowers Always Say So Much"

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

No matter how compelling the rhetoric about the life-saving gift of blood, most of us are able to skip right over it — until it has a personal application.

With the Red Cross Blood Drive today at St. Matthew's, friends of Mrs. Ronald Hort of East Stroudsburg need no convincing. She needed 30 pints of Red Cross blood for open heart surgery at Mt. Sinai Hospital in New York.

Because Monroe County has kept its blood account solvent by donations, she was able to get the blood without charge. So maybe here's your chance to make your most important Christmas gift right now.

Speaking of personal application, I never even knew where Patagonia was until Dr. Lura Evans decided to spend part of her sabbatical from the college there. But ever since I've been going around gleefully asking people if they knew where Patagonia is.

Even the few hep geographers who knew it is a region between Argentina and Chile (the dictionary says with a population of 163) had a hard time finding it on the map.

Then I changed the question to "Do you know anybody who's been to Patagonia?" And asked the wrong person. Donald DeOthe did: Francis Goodale of Bossardville was there last year enroute to Antarctica, of all places. The world's getting smaller all the time.

For Thanksgiving

Add rosy glow

STROUDSBURG — By now you must have turkey recipes and instructions about stuffing coming out your ears, but if you'd like to add a little variation that doesn't take much work, you might consider varying the cranberries this year.

Three cups of coarsely chopped cranberries added to the stuffing adds a bright note to what is usually a pretty colorless, if delicious part of the Thanksgiving turkey.

There is also a cranberry glaze which makes a turkey come out of the oven looking pretty colorful, too.

Cranberry Glaze

In small saucepan cook 2 cups cranberry juice cocktail until it reduces to 1 cup, then add 1/4 cup honey, 1/4 cup white corn syrup and 1/4 cup butter. Simmer 10 minutes. Use as basting sauce for turkey during last 45 minutes of cooking.

Sugared Cranberries

For good nibbling, there's sugared cranberries. In organic cups around the turkey they can take the place of cranberry sauce. Piled in a candy jar, they make refreshing nibbles.

Simply dip fresh cranberries into slightly beaten egg white, allow excess to run off, then roll cranberries in sugar and place in a single layer on foil-covered rack. Dry at room temperature.

Cranberry-Orange Relish

Then there's quick fresh cranberry-orange relish with variations.

4 cups (1 pound) fresh cranberries

2 Oranges, quartered and seeded

2 cups granulated sugar

Grind cranberries and oranges coarsely. Stir in sugar and mix well and chill in refrigerator several hours before serving. Makes one quart cranberry-orange relish.

Branded Relish: Stir in 2 tablespoons brandy before chilling.

Ginger Relish: Stir in 1/4 to 1/2-cup finely chopped crystallized ginger (or to taste) before chilling.

Tree-trimming on agenda at St. John's

STROUDSBURG — Reports marked the meeting of the Lutheran Church Women of St. John's, Stroudsburg, including a Christmas tree trim party at the church on Sunday, Dec. 19, at 5 p.m.

The Pocono district in a gathering will be held at Grace Lutheran Church, East Stroudsburg, on Dec. 9 at 10:30 a.m.

Mrs. Jennie Meixell announced that the December birthday party would be held Dec. 1 with donations to be mailed to Mrs. Charles Grace.

Mrs. Katherine James reported on the Pocono District meeting held at the Lutheran Church, Craig's Meadow on Oct. 24.

The meeting opened with devotions on "Thank Offerings" by Mrs. Louise Gage, and closed with good wishes for the president, Mrs. Helen Korner, and her husband, who are making a trip around the world.

Ann Landers

Dignity dead?

Dear Ann Landers: What has happened to dignity and respect for the deceased? I was horrified to read of the "drive-in funeral parlors" where you don't even have to get out of your car to view the remains of a loved one. I wouldn't be surprised if the next move would be a TV segment that shows all the corpses in the local mortuaries. Then people won't even have to go to the drive-ins. They can stay home, drink beer and see their loved ones on the idiot box.

Yesterday a woman I work with said, "My father's funeral was so lovely. I still feel a sense of peace." I asked her when she had buried her father. "This morning," she replied. I was shocked. If my children can't take off two or three days of work to pay their respects to me when I die, I'll feel that I did a pretty poor job as a mother.

The things that have been happening lately make me ashamed to be a member of the human race. What about you?

Outraged

Dear Out: My Chicago funeral consultant, Mr. Jules Furth, informs me that there are no drive-in mortuaries. One was opened in the South last year as a publicity stunt. Morticians all over the country were outraged by the cloddishness of the gimmick.

The drive-in was closed promptly.

Insofar as your children are concerned, it's not how long they take off work when you die that matters, but how they treat you when you are living.

Dear Ann: You've helped a lot of people. Will you please help thousands more by printing my story?

I could have died eight years ago when I was 27. I might have committed suicide or refused surgery when my life depended on the removal of the large intestine and bladder. I didn't know that nearly a million North Americans had undergone that kind of surgery and were now living full and active lives. These people are "ostomates." They have had a small alteration in their route of excretion, necessitated by birth defects, cancer and other diseases.

My problem was ulcerative colitis. The doctors operated on me and I awoke with a surprise ileostomy. Today no one could guess. Those I tell are fascinated. I have no diet or odor problems. I have earned a Ph.D., taught school full-time, and I have a good marriage. We camp, hike and enjoy swimming. My life has been more active and rewarding these past eight years than before the surgery.

Those who have had colostomies have outdone me.

They have had babies, they compete in athletics, fly planes and practice law and medicine. I hope your readers who have had such an operation, or are considering it and need emotional support, will contact the International United Ostomy Association at 1111 Wilshire Boulevard, Los Angeles, California 90017. We have established 180 clubs and we publish an informational magazine.

No one knows better than I that a good life requires understanding, courage and a sense of humor. If one happens to have all his internal organs, so much the better, but they aren't necessary.

Carol H., Eureka, Calif.

Dear Carol: Here's your letter plus thanks and heartfelt congratulations.

Dear Ann Landers: In a recent column you said a physician is able to tell if a woman has given birth to a baby. Can a doctor tell if a woman has had an abortion?

Denver Inquiry

Dear Den: If the abortion was performed early, a physician would not be able to tell. If the abortion were performed late (after the 12th to 15th week of pregnancy) it is possible that a doctor could tell, but not likely.

Dear Ann Landers: You

printed a letter about a young woman who bathed twice a day, used anti-perspirants, deodorants and colognes — but still she was sure she had an unpleasant odor. She had even gone to several doctors and they could not detect the offensive odor which she said was ruining her life. You told her she needed a head doctor, not a skin doctor.

The person I am writing about has the reverse problem. She really does have an offensive odor and is not aware of it. Those of us who work with her are appalled by her insensitivity. She's smartly dressed and attractive — what my mother used to call "clean on top dirty underneath." Please tell us what to do. Would an anonymous letter be in order? There are five women in this office and four men. Thanks from all of us.

Tongue Tied

Dear T.T.: Decide among yourselves which woman in the office communicates most easily with Miss Clean On Top. That person should then tell her how she, herself solved the very same problem after someone was good enough to give her the word. Easy to do? No. But suffering in silence is not easy either. Someone should speak up.

Notes to mother?

Notes pinned to the pillow of a mother who has flu — by a well-meaning husband who has inherited the house and kids.

Monday a.m.

Dearest: Sleep late. Everything under control. Lunches packed. Kids off to school. Menu for dinner planned. Your lunch is on a tray in refrigerator: fruit cup, finger sandwiches. Thermos of hot tea by bedside. See you around 6.

Tuesday a.m.

Honey: Sorry about the egg rack in the refrigerator. Hope you got back to sleep. Did the kids tell you about the Coke I put in the thermoses? The school might call you on this. Dinner may be a little late. I'm doing your door-to-door canvass for liver research. Your lunch is in refrigerator. Hope you like left-over chili.

Wednesday a.m.

Dear Doris: Why in the name of all that is sane would you put soap chips in the flour canister? If you have time, could you please come up with a likely spot for Chris' missing shoes? We've checked the clothes hamper, garage, back seat of car and wood box. Did you know the school has a ruling on bedroom slippers? There's some cold pizza for you in a napkin in the oven drawer. Late tonight. Driving 8 Girl Scouts to tour meat packing house!

Thursday a.m.

Doris: Don't panic over water in hallway. It crested last night at 9 p.m. Will finish laundry tonight. Please pencil in answers to following:

1. How do you turn on the garbage disposer?
2. How do you turn off the milkman?
3. Why would that rotten kid leave his shoes in his boots?
4. How do you remove a confederate flag inked on the palm of a small boy's hand?
5. What do you do with left-overs when they begin to snap at you when you open the door?

I don't know what you're having for lunch! Surprise me!

Friday a.m.

Hey: Don't drink from pitcher by the sink. Am trying to restore pink dress shirt to original white. Take heart. Tonight, the ironing will be folded, house cleaned and dinner on time. I called your mother.

Obituary

Former Gilbert man dies

BETHLEHEM — Henry L. Hahn, 59, formerly of Gilbert, died Saturday in St. Luke's Hospital, Bethlehem.

Born in Leighton and the son of the late John and Cora Smith Hahn, he was employed at Bethlehem Steel for the past 31 years and was a member of St. Matthew's United Church of Christ, Kunkletown.

He is survived by his wife, Lizzie Siffes Hahn; three sisters, Mrs. Anna Stettler, Slaton; Mrs. Lizzie Meekes, Palmerton; and his twin sister Helen, the wife of Fred Altomose, Wind Gap; also three brothers: George, of Slaton; Herbert, of Bath, and Allen, of Stroudsburg R.D. 4.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 2 p.m. from the Kresge Funeral Home, Brodheadsville with Rev. Adan Bohner officiating. Burial will be in the Kunkletown Cemetery.

Friends and relatives may call at the funeral home Tuesday evening from 7 p.m. until 9 p.m.

E-burg resident expires

EAST STROUDSBURG — Mrs. Anna M. O'Sullivan, 88, of Grandview Street, East Stroudsburg died Sunday in the General Hospital of Monroe County.

She was born in Bayonne, N.J., the daughter of the late Charles and Catherine Flynn Kane.

She was a member of St. Matthews Roman Catholic Church, East Stroudsburg and a resident of East Stroudsburg for the past three years. She was a former resident of Jersey City, N.J.

Mrs. O'Sullivan is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Patricia Fair of Saddlebrook, N.J.; Mrs. Maureen Mulkeen of Bloomfield, N.J. and Mrs. Ann Clare of East Stroudsburg, and 18 grandchildren.

Also surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Dorothy Coady of Jersey City, N.J., and Miss Betty Kane of Avon-by-the-Sea, N.J., and a brother, James Kane of Hawaii.

Requiem mass will be held at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday at St. Matthews Roman Catholic Church, East Stroudsburg with the Rev. Thomas J. Cawley, celebrant.

Burial will be in Holy Cross Cemetery, North Arlington, N.J.

Viewing will be 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesday in the Lanterman Funeral Home, East Stroudsburg.

Defense unit to mail disaster plan copy

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Civil Defense unit will mail a copy of the Community Disaster Plan in a few days to all mail patrons in the county.

The purpose of the plan, according to Ernest Klingel, county Civil Defense director, is in keeping with the agency's policy of continued education of the public to save life and property in times of manmade or natural disaster.

The plan instructs the citizenry what to do in the event of a nuclear attack. This really means that every householder should make pre-attack plans for his family, even to the point of constructing a shelter and stocking it, Klingel said.

The disaster plan contains sound advice on what to do in event of a natural disaster such as floods or storms.

Klingel asked that citizens not receiving the plan by mail pick up copies at Civil Defense head quarters in the Monroe County Courthouse.

Area Jaycees attend mock state legislature

HARRISBURG — Representatives from the Easton area, Nazareth, western Poconos, and the Pocono Mountains Jaycees attended the Pennsylvania Jaycee Model State Legislature recently held in Harrisburg.

Leonard A. Deane Jr., regional vice president, said "The purpose of the model state legislature was to acquaint the Jaycees of Pennsylvania with the procedures by which laws are enacted in our state and to serve as a vehicle by which local chapters can directly participate in the formulation of the external policy of the Pennsylvania Jaycees."

A total of seven resolutions were voted on during the session. Two resolutions were passed, the first resolution recommending the abolishment of the pricing authority of the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board, and the second resolution, sponsored by the Jaycees, recommending passage of Senate Bill 726.

The bill was passed by the Senate, 40-0, and the Pennsylvania Jaycees will now press for passage of this bill in the House. Senate Bill 726 will ban billboards within 660 feet from interstate and primary highways.

Max Zacher services held

EAST STROUDSBURG — Funeral services for Max Zacher, 79, of Henry St., East Stroudsburg, were held at 10 a.m. Sunday at the Lanterman Funeral Home with Rabbi Mordecai Y. Scharf officiating.

Burial was in the Dalton Cemetery, Dalton, with Morris Neuman, Joseph Heifetz, Simon Geffeu, Gus Kravitz, Isadore Leavitt, and Leo Kravitz serving as pallbearers.

Area residents plan attendance

STROUDSBURG — Arne Olson, Edmund Shay, and Helen Brown, all of Stroudsburg, will be among those in attendance at the annual conference of the Pennsylvania State Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation, Inc. to be held in Pittsburgh.

The association will be celebrating its 50th anniversary.

Congressman pledges help to ease financial burden

HARMONY, N.J. — Rep. Frank Thompson Jr. (D-Trenton) said he plans to initiate legislation authorizing the Department of the Interior to reimburse municipal and county governments that have suffered financial losses because of the Tocks Island Dam and Delaware Water Gap National Recreation Area projects.

Conceding local impact of the projects "should have been anticipated," Thompson told Tocks Island Regional Advisory Council (TIRAC) members at their sixth annual meeting Saturday, that the legislative program is still in the "embryo stage."

He said the legislation would have the Tocks area counties and municipalities declared "federally impacted," meaning they would be entitled to federal reimbursement for the losses incurred as a result of the presence of federal projects.

"If this program comes into being, it would be like saying: 'We (the federal government) had this impact on the counties resulting in X number of dollars and, in order to compensate, for the loss of tax ratables (taxable real estate), we contribute so much money.'"

Thompson told the members, assembled at the Pavilion Restaurant in Harmony, N.J., "It's apparent that it's going to be incumbent on me to amend the Tocks legislation (impact aid) to include it in existing Tocks law."

Chiding Thompson for the lack of federal aid, state Sen. Wayne Dumont (D-Phillipsburg) said the loss of taxable land to the tax-exempt federal projects "is the most important question" in assessing local impact.

"We (the state) have a definite formula for reimbursing the loss of tax ratables and I think it's high time that Congress moves in the same direction."

Earlier, Col. Carroll D. Strider, Philadelphia district engineer for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, had flatly denied allegations that the Corps is not giving fair treatment to private property owners whose land has been acquired for the projects.

Strider emphasized, "Citizens should write directly to me any time you feel you're not getting your due from us, whom we consider to be your servants."

During an afternoon business meeting, Thomas Klock, TIRAC director-secretary, told the TIRAC members he has been asked to appear before the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) Dec. 15 to report on the progress of four of TIRAC's counties, concerning the implementation of their solid waste programs.

This status report pertains to a fourth year EPA grant to fund preliminary engineering studies for the location of proposed landfill sites for Monroe, Pike, Warren and Sussex Counties.

Klock said if, at the Dec. 15 meeting, "sufficient progress" cannot be demonstrated, the remaining $40,000 of the grant will have to be returned.

In other business, TIRAC delegates voted to establish a Center for Environmental Design that will formulate land development design practices which would be more environmentally beneficial than the "haphazard" methods currently being employed.

The center will be funded by special contributions by the seven TIRAC counties and headed by Chuck Holzbog, an environmental design specialist.

Forest pest group

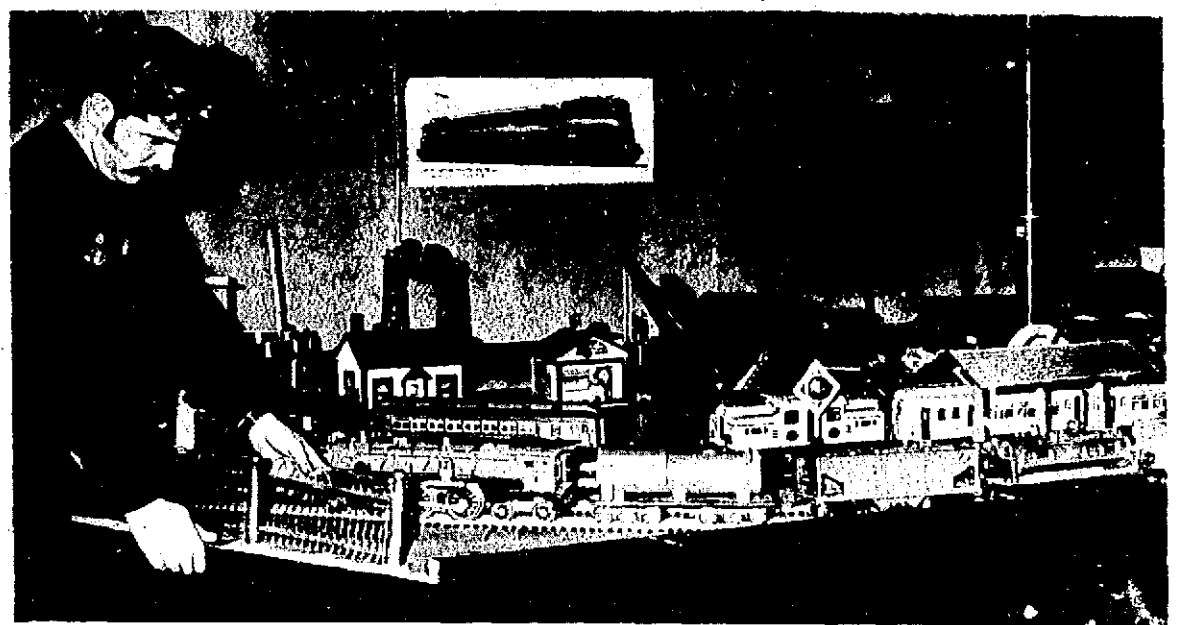

The delegates also agreed to establish a forest pest advisory group to combat the gypsy moth and to reactivate TIRAC's vector control committee for assistance in fighting mosquitoes.

Before adjourning, the assembly adopted a 1972 budget of $117,800, $30,000 less than the 1971 appropriations from the various state and federal agencies and foundations which supply the major portion of TIRAC's funding.

Following is a budget breakdown:

Staff services constitutes the greatest portion of the 1972 budget with $64,460 of which Klock will receive $10,300 annually; regional planner, $13,700; environmental specialist, $13,700 (if additional funds are received) and for various other office personnel.

Travel and subsistence, $2,600; rentals, $4,500; materials and supplies, $3,950; reproduction (for memos to members and annual report), $9,900; purchase of professional services, such as solid waste and planning coordination consultants, $27,800 and miscellaneous expenses of $1,500. These include $2,500 for the Sussex-Warren counties natural resources inventory and the fixed charges such as staff insurance.

Frank Buck adjusts the track for his standard-gauge "Blue Comet" special. With over 100 antique model train sets in his collection, Buck is currently building a display for his vast and colorful O-gauge items.

Association to present program

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Chapter of the Pennsylvania Association for Retarded Children will hold a special youth and adult program from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m. Monday in the Stroudsburg YMCA.

The program will highlight the activities for November, "Mental Retardation Month." The campaign is part of a nation-wide education drive being conducted by more than 1,500 member units of the National Association for Retarded Children.

Lucille Miller, president, said "the goal of the local unit is to make each citizen of Monroe County aware of the problem of mental retardation. Public knowledge and understanding are the most effective weapons for prevention and alleviation of mental retardation."

Planning meeting

STROUDSBURG — The Stroudsburg Borough Planning Commission will hold its regular monthly meeting at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 24 in the council room of the municipal building.

Seminars keep nurses up to date in medicine

EAST STROUDSBURG — Nurses at the General Hospital of Monroe County keep up to date in the rapidly changing and advancing field of medicine by regularly attending seminars, workshops and classes in general or specialized nursing, a hospital spokesman reported. In October and November alone, at least 17 nurses from the General Hospital of Monroe County participated in such programs.

Mrs. Trina Snyder is currently in the third week of a four-week seminar in physical rehabilitation methods for registered nurses at Good Shepherd Rehabilitation Hospital in Allentown. The program is intended to demonstrate how the concept of total rehabilitation can be incorporated as an important part of nursing care.

Emphasis is placed on the role of the nurse in testing and training the patient in self care and functional activities such as standing, sitting, walking and dressing. The simple task of buttoning a shirt or blouse can be a slow and difficult procedure for an individual recuperating from an accident or illness. Proper testing, care and training by the nurse are important to the patient for maximum independence.

Supervisor Mrs. Anne Roth, head nurses Mrs. Elizabeth Doyle and Mrs. Mary Stettler and registered nurse, Mrs. Grace Wolbert, all members of the maternity nursing staff, attended a recent conference on the newborn. It dealt with the intensive care of infants, resuscitation, nursery care and early identification of anomalies. The one-day session in Scranton was sponsored by the W. E. H. Consortium, a voluntary health agency group.

Nursing workshop

A disaster nursing workshop, sponsored by the Monroe County Chapter of the American Red Cross was attended by Mrs. Margaret Decker, director of nurses; Mrs. Vesta Altman, assistant director of nurses; Mrs. Jean Eldridge, assistant supervisor of nurses; and head nurse in dispensary, Mrs. Janet Conrad.

The workshop covered the effects of a disaster. Red Cross policies during a disaster and the role of the Red Cross nurse in a disaster situation.

"New Concepts in Coronary Artery Heart Disease" was the topic of the Keystone Heart Association's annual seminar for nurses held recently. Attending from the General Hospital of Monroe County were registered nurses: Mrs. Claudia Parnell, Mrs. Helen Steeler, Mrs. Elizabeth Anderson, Mrs. Gertrude Fowler, Mrs. Joan Gerdonson and Mrs. Mary Metzgar and licensed practical nurse, Mrs. Mary Coffman.

Speaker to address visiting nurses

STROUDSBURG — Lorraine Visneski, executive director of the Columbia-Montour Home Health Services, Inc. will speak at the annual dinner meeting of the Visiting Nurse Association of Monroe County at 6:30 p.m. tonight in the Penn Stroud.

By ANDREA B. STERN
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — "Beep, beep...zoom!" This and the assorted toots and hoots emitted from the Stroudsburg area home of Frank Buck bear no relation to the comical Road Runner of cartoon fame.

They pertain, in fact, to his more serious and conscientiously acquired collection of antique model trains.

Yet, still, with his assemblage of more than 100 model train sets, all Buck wants for Christmas is a Lionel "state set."

"Always fascinated with trains as a youngster," Buck's enthusiasm was renewed four years ago when a friend encouraged him to attend a train collector's meeting.

"That gave me the urge to get back in," he said and Buck was soon collecting trains at a time when today's space-age youngsters were turning their attention toward model rockets and launches to set them in near-orbit.

Buck's interest as a collector is predominantly in the better quality models made before World War II. Most of the sets in his collection date back to the twenties and thirties.

Lovingly eyeing the floor-to-ceiling shelves on which most of his sets are displayed, Buck explains he "usually hangs on to everything he buys," but wryly admits, "Like anything else, space becomes a problem."

And, if the trains don't run, it doesn't at all stop Buck in his tracks. "A train collector doesn't care if it runs or not," Buck explained, adding the most important factor is to collect the more unusual models.

Among the more unusual is his "pride" — a 1937 full-scale Lionel Hudson engine which, when originally made, sold for $70 but is now worth considerably well over that sum.

Buck's oldest model is a 1916 O-gauge set made by Ives. It cast iron. He still has the first train given his father, Ed Buck of the Pocono Park area, a 1921 standard gauge electric type. And included in his collection is his own first train, a 1948 Lionel O-gauge steam engine.

Trains in basement

The vast and colorful collection is housed in the basement of Buck's Stroud Park Estates home where he lives with wife Brenda, daughter Wendy, a peedle and a great Dane.

In addition to the numerous shelf displays, Buck has an intricate set-up on which eight standard trains criss-cross in every possible direction, going through tunnels, over bridges and under mountains.

He's currently in the process of building a similar but even more elaborate display for his O-gauge trains which will feature coal and log loaders and horses that march up a ramp into boxcars.

Antique model trains, like authentic antique automobiles, are all those over 25 years old, according to Buck. When purchasing one, quality and workmanship are important as well as the materials. He explained the antique train sets were made of pressed steel or cast iron whereas, today, they are made almost entirely of plastic.

Buck's interest in the standard gauge models, none of which have been made after 1939. These run on a two and one-quarter-inch wide track as opposed to the smaller O-gauge which runs on a one and three-eighths-inch track.

Buck contends the trend toward smaller trains is a result of the space problem, quipping that, at Christmas time, there's little room for the traditional tree once all the model trains have been placed underneath in their wrapped parcels.

He accredits much of his vast collection to his membership in the Train Collectors Association which offers members the opportunity to meet six times a year not forgetting the chance to swap models and parts.

But his family's enthusiasm in model trains nowhere near equal's Buck's. His wife's fascination lies with the "cute little people" waiting to catch a train on the platform of one of Buck's station accessories.

Like a true homemaker in the most feminine tradition, she eagerly dislodged the removable roof of her husband's "Blue Comet" to reveal the miniature seats and restrooms inside.

As for the peedle, it once attacked the running trains, fearing they would hurt Brenda and, needless to say, the great Dane is not even allowed past the basement steps.

NAACP head leads meeting

STROUDSBURG — Mrs. Doris Hilton conducted her first meeting as the new president of the Monroe County chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People Sunday.

Mrs. Hilton assumed leadership of the organization following the recent death of Carol Venev who headed up the association since its August reorganization.

Mrs. Hilton said she hopes the NAACP in Monroe County will bring about unity and understanding through working in the community.

"We're not here to aggravate people, but to bring them together. We hope to do more in the future than we have done in the past," said Mrs. Hilton.

"There is prejudice all through this area — the people may not be aware of it, but it is there. Stroudsburg has to be awakened to the fact of prejudice and it has to be stopped."

"We plan to move ahead in programs involving youth, jobs, politics, housing and just general community awareness," projected Mrs. Hilton.

On the subject of youth Mrs. Hilton said, "Young people here in Stroudsburg aren't militant. They go to school with a white majority — they accept the whites more than the blacks."

"The NAACP is not militant, but it does have to be stronger and speak with a unified voice. We'll deal more with problems and not with personalities."

"People all over the country know about the NAACP. Anyone from a large city knows about the work done by the NAACP. We are always open to all the people," added Mrs. Hilton.

Helping the new president conduct her first meeting was Thomas Bright, section vice-president of the northeastern extension of the state NAACP.

"Put together an ad hoc committee," advised Bright. "Make sure you have your trouble shooters. Where the NAACP moves in this community, everybody is going to have respect for them."

In business conducted at the meeting, the members of the Monroe County chapter decided to look into the part-time holiday job situation for young people.

It was also decided to hold an election for the office of vice-president during the January meeting. A three-man, two-woman nominating committee was established to place names in nomination for the office.

A motion to form a youth council named in honor of the late president Carol Venev was declared out of order.

Mrs. Hilton explained the motivation to form a youth council and the naming of the council should be left up to the young people and did not require direction from the adult chapter.

An objection to the cancellation of the December meeting of the chapter was made by Henry Ray who said the problems the NAACP deals with will not be suspended while members take time to do their holiday shopping.

After extensive discussion, it was decided to hold a December meeting and those members who could make the session would attend to discuss problems which require the attention of the NAACP.

$12,000 in drugs captured

STROUDSBURG — State police from Stroudsburg, Fern Ridge, Hazleton, and Dunmore, armed with search warrants, combined forces Saturday and confiscated approximately $12,000 worth of drugs in two separate raids in Jackson Township, resulting in the arrest of three persons.

John Swiontek, 27, of Pileston, Robert Mundy Jr., 24, of Denville, N.J., and Phyllis Grecco, 21, of Stroudsburg R.D. 5, were arraigned before District Magistrate Eleanor Randolph on charges of possession of dangerous drugs and committed to the Monroe County Jail in default of $25,000 bail each.

State police netted 24 pounds of marijuana and various amounts of heroin and hashish at the Stroudsburg R.D. 5 home where they arrested Swiontek and Mundy. The drugs have an estimated street value of $9,500.

The second raid in rural Stroudsburg produced seven pounds of marijuana and other assorted drugs valued at $2,500 and resulted in the arrest of Miss Grecco.

Police investigators noted the arrest followed an extensive investigation and said that more arrests are expected.

The date of the preliminary hearing for the three suspects was not immediately determined.

Water Gap toll bridge

DELAWARE WATER GAP — Traffic on the Delaware Water Gap Toll Bridge during the month of October showed an increase of 10.56 per cent while revenue increased 12.51 per cent as compared to the month of October last year.

During the month 432,860 vehicles used the bridge.

Environmental spokesman urges reusable products

STROUDSBURG — A spokesman for the Monroe County Environmental Action Group (MCEAG) said recently Monroe County is fortunate to be located near markets for various reusable commodities and should, at least, try to work out something viable with these companies.

The remarks came in view of the recent discussion regarding the solid waste problem in Monroe County and the statement in the report from The Maxwell School at Syracuse University concerning "the absence of a sense of crisis" about it all.

The group added that local residents would like to urge county and TIRAC officials to give more consideration to the concept of separation and reclamation.

It was explained that, "Besides the Packaging Corporation of America and Hagen Manufacturing Co. being right on our doorstep to buy and process waste paper of various kinds, we are but one hour from a glass company in New Jersey and even closer to Bethlehem Steel Corp.

"The former pays $20 per ton for crushed glass and an executive from Bethlehem Steel telephoned a member of our group last week to say that they are buying baled metal cans at a very good price."

Members of the MCEAG are hopeful that actual steps will soon be taken to insure ordinances be passed requiring separation of materials, and that county officials will utilize trial methods in collection and transportation of the materials with the nearby markets.

Environmental group members suggested that the county commissioners and Tocks Island Regional Advisory Council officials could further inform themselves of new and available methods in waste management and recycling at a conference scheduled for Nov. 29-30 in Newark, N.J. It will be held in the Student Center at the Newark College of Engineering.

The purpose of the gathering is to brief municipal and industrial officials of Essex County, N.J., on how they can begin the immediate reduction of solid waste volume through city-run recycling programs.

While MCEAG contended that Monroe County functions in a different governmental framework, the members agreed it could still be very helpful by informing officials of some of the factual bases of the decisions they must begin to make now in order to maximize the opportunities to reduce solid waste costs in future operations.

A critical evaluation will be given of both those recycling systems presently available and those now under development, but expected to be operational in the near future.

Also to be discussed is financing of future solid waste management and recycling systems, current and future markets for recyclables, and legislative steps required on local, state and national levels to reduce generation of solid wastes.

The 22 communities in Essex County are being urged by federal and state solid waste management authorities to change from the present-day individual solid waste collection and disposal systems to regional operations.

It is this subject which will receive major emphasis in speeches by Richard Sullivan, director of New Jersey's Environment Protection Department; Richard Toftner, director of grants and planning for the U.S. Environment Protection Agency; and Jerome Kitchener, head of New York City's EPA.

The conference registration fee is $50 per person and includes... For information on the program and reservations, write Gary Liss, Division of Planning, Newark City Hall, Newark, N.J., 07102.

ESSC must wait another year for mat classic MVP

By PETE NEVINS
EAST STROUDSBURG — He will only be a spectator at East Stroudsburg State College wrestling matches this season, but before his career is finished, Bill Luckenbaugh may be one of the most successful wrestlers the Warriors have ever had.

Luckenbaugh, who will sit out the upcoming season, dominated the competition Friday and Saturday in winning the outstanding wrestler award and the 150-pound title in the fifth annual East Stroudsburg Open Wrestling Tournament.

The sophomore from West York, Pa., pinned four of his opponents, won a default decision over a fifth and then demolished Tom Minkel, the NCAA College Division three-place finisher the last two years, 11-1, in the finals.

Without Luckenbaugh, ESSC fell to fourth in the team standings, the first time the school has not won its own tournament. The best any ESSC wrestler could do was a pair of third-place finishes by Dave Yohn (118) and surprising Fred Compeau (heavyweight).

The University of Buffalo, with two individual champions in Eric Knuutila (167) and Tony Policare (heavyweight), won the team championship with 58½ points. West Chester and Slippery Rock, competing without its NCAA champion Stan Dziedzic, tied for second with 45½ points. ESSC scored 44½ points.

486 competed
A total of 486 wrestlers competed in the two-day tournament, sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega service fraternity. More than 60 colleges and wrestling clubs were represented.

Two defending champions, Dave Pruzansky (142) of the Penn Grapplers and John Stevenson (177) of Franklin and Marshall, were repeat winners.

Pruzansky won a title for the third straight year, beating Brian Schmidt of West Chester in the finals, 3-1 in overtime. He also had beaten Schmidt, 10-1, in 1969 on a referee's decision last year.

Stevenson, an NCAA College Division champion last spring, easily handled Gary Cimarelli of Trenton State in the finals, 10-1. Teammate Chris Black (126), another 1971 NCAA champion from Franklin and Marshall, won his weight class over Rich Kornel of the Cincinnati Bearcats, 3-2.

Six of the ten final-round bouts were close with Bruce

Biondi (118) of Brockport State, Black, Don Dixon (158) of Northern Michigan and Policare capturing one-point decisions, and Pruzansky and Craig Spencer (134) of the New York Athletic Club winning in overtime.

Gains revenge
The most one-sided final was Luckenbaugh's as the ESSC student, competing unattached, gained revenge over Minkel, for a 5-4 loss in last spring's NCAA College Division championships.

Luckenbaugh caught Minkel in the early seconds for a takedown and a predicament, added a reversal in the second period and a near fall in the third.

Because of a light course load his first two years in school, Luckenbaugh has three years of classwork remaining and only two years of eligibility. He plans to wrestle during the 1972-73 and 1973-74 seasons.

One defending champion, Ron Brandt of Buffalo, lost in the 190-pound finals to Barry

Reighard, unattached from Ohio University, 3-2.

ESSC's four remaining wrestlers after Friday's action all lost in the quarter-finals. Yohn was beaten by John Spates of Slippery Rock, 14-7, at 118; Steve Senior bowed to Black, 7-2, at 126; Rich MacHose lost to John Logan of the Cincinnati Bearcats, 3-0 in overtime, at 190; and Compeau was pinned by Policare in 2:49.

FINALS

118—Bruce Black (Brockport) defeated John Spates (Slippery Rock), 3-2.
126—Chris Black (Franklin and Marshall) defeated Rich Kornel (Cincinnati Bearcats), 3-2.
134—Craig Spencer (New York Athletic Club) defeated Bill Cimarelli (West Chester CC), 5-2, referee's decision.
142—Dave Pruzansky (Penn Grapplers) defeated Brian Schmidt (West Chester), 3-1, overtime.
158—Don Dixon (Northern Michigan) defeated Jim Falls (Lake Superior), 2-1.
167—Eric Knuutila (Buffalo) defeated Steve Benson (unattached), 4-1.
177—John Stevenson (Franklin and Marshall) defeated Gary Cimarelli (Trenton State), 10-1.
190—Barry Reighard (unattached) defeated Ron Brandt (Buffalo), 3-2.
190—Tony Policare (Buffalo) defeated Pat Russell (Buffalo), 11-7.

CONSOLATION FINALS

118—Dave Yohn (East Stroudsburg) defeated Dennis Smith (Rutgers), 4-2.
126—Bill Martin (unattached) pinned

Another ESSC student, former All-American Ted Pease, now representing the Newport Olympic Club, was eliminated in the 126-pound quarter-finals. Mel Cunningham of Buffalo beat Pease, 5-2.
Tom Burlington, an APO member, served as tournament director and was helped by more than 150 APO brothers and members of the fraternity's sister auxiliary.

TEAM LEADERS
University of Buffalo 58½, West Chester and Slippery Rock 45½, East Stroudsburg 44½, Trenton State 43½, Franklin and Marshall 40½, Newport Olympic Club 38½, Cincinnati Bearcats 35½, Penn Grapplers 33 and Northern Michigan 29.

Rodger dodges Cowboys past Redskins, 13-0

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Elusive Roger Staubach scrambled for a 29-yard touchdown and reactivated Mike Clark kicked two field goals Sunday as the Dallas Cowboys shut out the Washington Redskins, 13-0, and vaulted into the eastern division lead of the National Football Conference.

In addition, the Cowboy defense turned in a foolproof performance to help nail down the victory that gave Dallas a half-game edge in the Division with four games to go.

In a game featuring trench warfare between the opposing lines, the Cowboys marched 66 yards to a touchdown the first time they had the ball. The drive was climaxed when Staubach, on a third down passing situation, broke out of the pocket and streaked 29 yards for the score.

In the third period, Clark — a last-minute roster addition for injured Toni Fritsch — kicked a 26-yard field goal to stretch the Dallas lead to 10-0.

Then, in the fourth quarter, he hit with a 48-yarder to cinch the triumph as the Dallas defense held the Redskin attack fully in check.

The Redskins blew two field goal attempts in the first half. On the first from 40 yards out, the snap was fumbled. Then, in the closing minutes of the second period, Curt Knight missed a 25-yarder.

Washington's top runner, Larry Brown, was held to only 27 yards rushing in 11 carries.

Steelers rally to down Giants

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—John Rowser returned an interception 70 yards for a touchdown and Preston Pearson ran back the second half kickoff 77 yards to set up another TD, giving the Pittsburgh Steelers a 17-13 victory over the New York Giants.

The victory evened the Steelers' record at 5-5 and kept them tied with Cleveland for first place in the Central Division of The American Football Conference. The Browns beat the New England Patriots 27-7.

Pittsburgh was unable to generate much offense in the game, but the Steelers did not make the mistakes the Giants did which made the difference.

New York turned the ball over on two interceptions and a

Miami boots by Baltimore, 17-14

MIAMI (UPI)—Bob Griese directed Miami to two touchdowns within two minutes in the third quarter and Garo Yepremian booted a 20-yard, tie-breaking field goal with 6:30 left Sunday, to give the Dolphins a 17-14 win over the Baltimore Colts.

The win gave the Dolphins a one and one-half game lead over the Colts in the AFC Eastern Division.

Jim Kiick scored from one yard out to give the Dolphins a 7-7 tie with 9:40 left in the third period.

After a pass interception by linebacker Doug Swift on the Yepremian's field goal came after a Miami drive stalled on the Baltimore 13.

Johnny Unitas, starting his first game of the season, directed Baltimore on a flawless 78-yard scoring drive in the first quarter, a drive capped by a four-yard blast by stubby Don Nottingham.

Vikings go deep to get win

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—Vikings quarterback Bob Lee sprinted four yards around his right end in the third period Sunday to score Minnesota's first touchdown in 11 quarters and cement a 23-10 victory over the New Orleans Saints.

The Minnesota win, plus the Detroit Lion's win over the Chicago Bears earlier in the day, gave the Vikings a game and a half lead over Detroit in the Central Division of the National Football Conference.

Safety Charlie West set up the first Viking touchdown by returning a 53-yard field goal attempt to the New Orleans 31. Four plays later, Lee sprinted around right end for the first touchdown.

Detroit humbles Bears

CHICAGO (UPI)—Bill Munson came in for an ailing Greg Landry and, capitalizing on a raft of Chicago mistakes, led an opportunistic band of Detroit Lions to a 28-3 humbling of the Bears Sunday.

Brodie misfires, Rams triumph

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—John Brodie had four passes intercepted and the Los Angeles Rams turned two of them into touchdowns Sunday to whip the San Francisco Forty Niners 17-6 and moved into first place in the National Football Conference Western Division.

A partisan crowd of 80,050 at the Coliseum howled in glee as Gene Howard intercepted three Brodie passes and Jim Nettes picked off another and ran it 29 yards to a touchdown just before halftime.

The Forty Niners got a 3-0 lead in the first quarter at 13:56 on Bruce Gossett's 20-yard field goal. They ate up almost half of the period on an 18-play march that bogged down on the Ram 12.

out five regular defensive starters, changed places with the Eagles to take over the basement of the Eastern Division of the National Football Conference.

The Eagles jumped to a 17-0 lead by early in the second quarter, but the Cardinals tied the score at 17-17 by halftime. Dempsey, playing his first game this season, kicked field goals of 27 and 45 yards in the second half after a 21 yard field goal in the first.

Norm Thompson was guilty of the second St. Louis fumble while trying to return a missed field goal attempt, and Steve Smith ran the ball into the end zone from the five-yard line for Philadelphia. Chuck Latourette dropped the ball when he received the snap for a St. Louis punt, and a few plays after Kelley recovered, Philadelphia quarterback Pete Lisk tossed for six yards to Harold Jackson for another score.

Lisk also had a touchdown pass of five yards to Lee Bougeuss for an Eagle score in the fourth quarter.

Jackson appeared about to score the final Eagle touchdown on a pass from Lisk but he dropped the ball. Hawkins picked it up on the first bounce at about the five-yard line and ran into the end zone to complete the 53-yard play.

Gossett got another field goal, a 26-yarder at 13:09 of the second quarter but at 14:28 Nettes intercepted the pass intended for Preston Kiley and scooted 29 yards down the south sideline for his touchdown to make it 14-6 at the half.

The only score in the third quarter was a 49-yard field goal by Ray that put the Rams on in front 17-6.

SKI INDUSTRY CLOSES IN ON $14 MILLION MARK

The Poconos are now, in fact, a 12-month resort area. Skiing at 12 major slopes and winter resorts — plus snowmobiling and other winter sports — accounts for almost as much vacation business as the famous Pocono honeymoon resorts.

Average per-day expenditures during the 1970 ski season almost surpassed the traditional and previous summer highs. Pocono slopes drew 546,900 skiers during the '70 season — a 29% increase over the previous year. And the average expenditure per skier was $21.70 per day ... exclusive of accommodations.

Skiers spent $3 million at ski areas for rentals, lift tickets, ski instruction; overnight accommodations accounted for another $1.8 million. Another $8.7 million was spent in restaurants, for refreshments, car service, gasoline and miscellaneous expenses.

Wife's death teaches husband 'There is no escape'

The way I feel,
The way you look at me
When the rain is on the run.
The way I hope,
When you try to say all
The words of sorrow.
Don't ask why,
When an old friend dies
and leaves you all alone.
Ask any mirror,
There is no escape.
—Tom Helton

DENVER (UPI) — Tom Helton had watched his young wife, Lyn, 20, die slowly of cancer since early 1970. When she died this month he felt a sense of relief.

"Lyn's face really relaxed," he said. "It's the first time I'd seen her without pain, without a grimace on her face, for a couple of months."

Lyn's battle with cancer and her wish to help others faced with a terminal disease gained national attention last summer when a young thief broke into the Heltons' modest East Denver apartment and stole a tape recorder she used to record her thoughts on being a dying mother.

She received another recorder and continued her work which was incomplete when she died Nov. 7 at age 20.

Tom, 23, and the family attorney are organizing the tapes, several manuscripts and a volume of poetry to fulfill Lyn's wishes. "It seemed so distant at first because the disease wasn't that evident," Tom recalled. "There was pain, but not that much to make you think it could kill."

Once they learned Lyn had osteo sarcoma, a rare terminal bone cancer, Lyn and Tom faced two major problems: They had to learn to accept a future separation that could come at any time and would last forever, and had to raise their daughter Jennifer, who was two years old when her mother died.

"All along, Lyn knew it was cancer once she found out it was a tumor. It still didn't believe that and kept rationalizing," her husband said. "You have some kind of mechanism inside that says no, this isn't true, it just can't be true."

"We went camping just to try to think. I hadn't thought of contacting someone else about the cancer," Tom said. "After we got back from camping that weekend, I got in touch with a doctor in Denver and then we came down here."

"It was like we were pitched in the sea and we were just being jostled around," Tom said. "It was very emotional and there was no reason or rhyme to it."

He said it took "about six months to get our heads above water . . . and see just exactly where we stood."

"They gave me radiation," she said two months before her death. "It burnt my leg very badly. I lost the use of it. My hair fell out and I lost weight."

She halted the radiation treatments and put an end to the drugs, which made her vomit for long continuous periods.

"For me, mentally, the drugs were worse than having the disease," she said. "I would rather die in a shorter length of time with a happy state of mind than take the drugs and be unhappy and mentally deficient."

Most of all, she wanted Jennifer to remember her bright cheery smile.

Among Lyn's writings is a series of letters to Jennifer, whose short life span has covered most of the agonizing months the Heltons wrestled with the disease and the threat of death. The letters, which will not be made public, are to help tell Jennifer why her mother had to leave her.

spend my days now sitting up in Tom's chair, wrapped in a blanket, trying hard sometimes to breathe."

Lyn entered Childrens Hospital at the end of October and died eight days later, Tom said she was scared at the end, "brave, but frightened."

Her last two wishes were fulfilled by her husband, who understood them best.

Step in combating epidemic

Philly has hotline for VD

NEW YORK (UPI) — "In this country when we're sending men to the moon and waging war far from home, we can't keep hiding this epidemic," Joe Forish, 18, and head of Operation Venus says.

"Operation Venus" is a venereal disease hotline in Philadelphia. It is operated by teen-agers for teen-agers who want help with a suspected VD infection — without Mom or Dad knowing about it.

"Venus isn't perfect, it's only a step," Forish said in an interview while in New York to report on the project at the annual meeting of the American Social Health Association (ASHA).

"But it is a step in the right direction. If we all unite our efforts these steps will lead to great strides in erasing this problem . . ."

The "problem" is crisis size, the ASHA reported.

There are 2.5 million cases of gonorrhea and an estimated 95,000 cases of syphilis in the nation. The number could well be higher. The ASHA said only one out of every eight VD cases treated is reported by doctors.

Forish, a psychology major at St. Joseph's College, organized Venus while president of the Community Service Corps, an organization of 4,200 high school students.

The Venus hotline has handled 1,500 calls for help since starting last January. The majority of the calls were from girls, according to Forish.

Hotlines, modeled on "Venus," have since been launched in Biloxi, Miss., and Lexington, Ky. Forish said cities in about a dozen states have shown interest in the idea. A do-it-yourself Venus packet for distribution to youth groups around the nation is being readied.

"If your town can find 10 or 20 volunteers with an open, mature attitude, a phone, some training, input and publicity you can have an Operation Venus," Forish said.

"In order to catch our philosophy try to put yourself in the place of teen-agers who think they might be infected with VD."

"Such young people normally face hours of worry and frustration and often will find themselves up against a society which ostracizes them as sex criminals."

"Our program has two concerns: telling kids the facts about VD and getting them to treatment."

When a boy or girl calls, the caller's name isn't asked. Basic information is passed along, including where to go and what to do if VD is suspected.

"Never do we make a diagnosis over the phone," Forish said, "but we urge all callers to get treatment. Our motto is 'be sure and be cured.'"

Forish said a lot of young people are uptight about going to their family doctors. They fear parents will be told.

In cases where a youngster is so scared of discovery, the Venus volunteers will transport him to a clinic at a time and place mutually convenient.

Jane, 17, was one picked up at a girl friend's house in suburban Philadelphia.

"She told of a pretty messed up home life and an equally unsuccessful relationship with her boyfriend," Forish said. "She told me something surprising."

"Her father was a doctor. Yet she said she couldn't talk to him with any expectation of understanding."

"It isn't time yet for Jennifer to understand," Tom said. "She doesn't know that her mother is gone right now."

He said he plans to take care of Jennifer himself, with the aid of a neighbor who watches the child when Tom, a musician and photographer, is working.

Lyn poured herself into the work on the book, which she called a "sort of autobiography," working five or six hours a day on it and sometimes into the early hours of the morning.

She said she wanted to "get across how it feels to be dying and raising children at the same time." Lyn hoped that other people, especially dying mothers, might gain insight into their own problems by reading her book.

Much of her book is nearly in finished form. The style is light and simple. "I've known for almost a year now that I am going to die soon of one of man's most dreaded diseases, cancer," Lyn wrote. "It seems that my dying will only be of benefit if someone else can learn from it. So, I write you this book."

Near the end she wrote, "My chest is hurting so very badly. I

We improve with age.

We like to think of ourselves as the Chateau LaFite-Rothschild of the automotive world!

We keep getting better every year.

Since 1949, we've improved our little car over 2,200 times.

Last year we gave it a more powerful engine and nearly twice the luggage space it had before.

This year we added 29 more improvements.

We found a way to keep engine noise down.

We found a way to make it run better in cold weather.

And we found a way to make it run even smoother.

In cold, hot or whatever weather you have in mind.

So it goes on.

Since '49, we've made over a thousand body and chassis improvements.

Since '49, we've made over a thousand engine and transmission improvements.

And the reason for all this progress?

Since '49, we've spent absolutely no time making silly styling changes.

What you see, once again, is what you get.

- 1. No-Holes Freshness. That's what Sunbeam's famous for. The Batter Whipped texture keeps out air, keeps in freshness.
- 2. P.E.P. - Powerful Energy Protein. Sunbeam's found a way to improve the protein. Now it's a heftier — more balanced protein. Means it's a better bread for everyone — including kids like him.

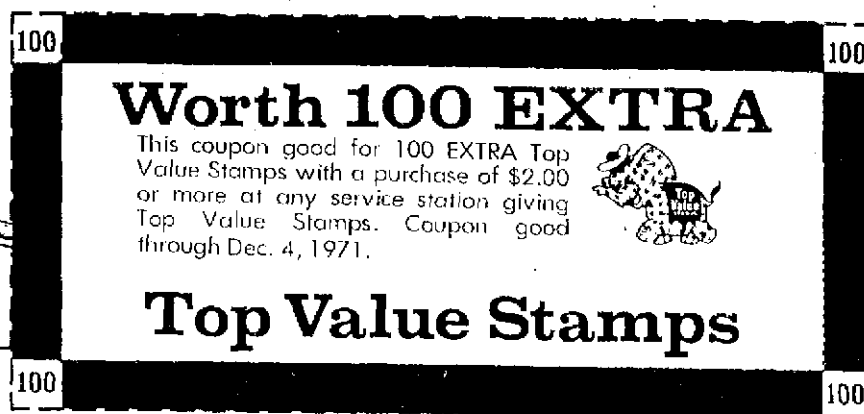

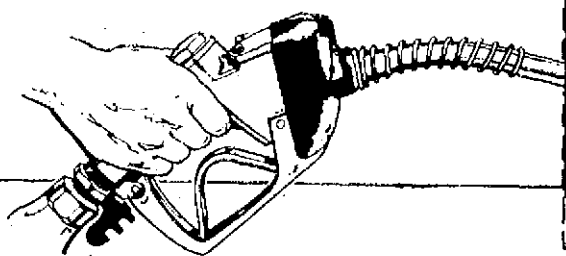

3. 100% Vegetable Shortening. The pure, liquid kind . . . the best you can buy. Would Batter Whipped Sunbeam use any other kind?

Hard rock 'nation' for sale

By WESLEY PRUDEN JR.
Dow Jones-Ottaway News
BETHEL, N.Y. — When Woodstock broke up 26 months ago in Max Yasgur's cornfield, all the writers looked around at the mud and the garbage and the dented hillside of alfalfa and agreed: "It looks like a battlefield."

The cornfields and the alfalfa still look like a battlefield. More to the point, they feel like one.

The garbage is gone; Yasgur insists that within a month after the last Volkswagen camper drove out Pucky Huddle Road to the highway he couldn't find so much as a chewing gum wrapper.

But the 400,000 (or 300,000 or 500,000, depending on who's estimating) rock freaks left behind an aura of mysticism, a sense of shrine.

Today the Yasgur dairy farm, in the rolling Catskills 90 miles upstate from New York City, feels like, well, Gettysburg, or Anietam, or Bunker Hill.

Last week Yasgur, 51, who wants to retire to the Florida Keys, put the farm up for sale. He suffered a heart attack last year.

His asking price is $1,000 an acre, about the usual for Sullivan County, and the buyer will get 600 acres of crop and grazing land, a fine view of the hills, three houses, two barns, two ponds (which for 72 singular hours were the twin skinny-dipping capitals of the world), and a little stream.

With all that, the buyer will get a clear title to what once was, but won't ever be again, the Woodstock Nation.

Yasgur listed his farm with several brokers in the area and put an ad in The Wall Street Journal. "I've answered calls from Seattle, Oregon — we got letters from all the states. A lot of them are just curious, but some are serious."

"Very, very few farms are left for sale in this area. We have priced it as farm land — the price is in the ball park. We expect to sell it."

CBS Records, a subsidiary of the Columbia Broadcasting System, called to ask if it could buy just an acre to build a memorial to the Woodstock Music and Arts Fair. Yasgur told them no, he wouldn't sell an acre but he would donate an acre if CBS would agree to build and maintain such a memorial.

Some of the inquiries came from young people who came to Woodstock for their mind-blowing week in August, 1969. They were among the merely curious.

Yasgur was just a Sullivan County dairy farmer when he leased his farm for $50,000 for the three-day weekend. Since then he has retired from dairying and has become a sometime lecturer to youth groups on college and high school campuses.

He's still a hero to many of them — but some of the younger ones only vaguely remember what Woodstock was all about. Two years in the rock-music world is a millennium.

Janis Joplin and Jimi Hendrix, who were on top of their world at Woodstock, are dead, killed by hard drugs.

Joan Baez was a special heroine: She led the multitude in singing "we shall overcome" for her husband David Harris, who was in prison for resisting the draft. They got back together, then split up.

Everyone who was here is a little older now, and a lot of the magic of Woodstock has moved to the suburbs and has a mortgage on it.

Many others argue about what Woodstock was, and was not. Rolling Stone, which chronicles the world of rock music with a cold and calculating eye, last week turned its wrath against the Woodstock myth.

Said the Stone: "Woodstock Nation never existed, and those who find great significance in things like 'Altamont,' death of Woodstock Nation," put great importance, as usual, in things that never happened in the first place."

Coming of age not easy

By WALTER MOSSBERG
Dow Jones-Ottaway News

Early last year, GI Steve Moses stepped on a land mine in Vietnam and suffered severe cuts and bone fractures in both legs. His left foot, in particular, received considerable nerve damage.

Subsequently, while Moses was on convalescent leave in his home town of Kalamazoo, Mich., the foot became infected.

A local hospital agreed to treat Moses, but its administrators insisted that his stepfather take responsibility for the treatment and bill payment.

The reason: Moses was 20 years old at the time; and current laws in Michigan and most other states decree that an individual must be 21 years of age in order to contract for medical treatment.

"They treated me like a child because of my age," Moses complains. "As soon as they found I was 20, they began to ignore me and would only talk to my stepfather. I felt like a kid being taken to the doctor, even though I'd just been to war. It made me mad."

But times are changing in Michigan and other states. Spurred by the passage earlier this year of the amendment to the constitution that lowered the voting age in federal elections to 18, governors and state legislators now are focusing on lowering the "age of majority" — that age when a youth legally becomes an adult. In Michigan, for example, a new majority-at-18 law will become effective next Jan. 1.

Laws lowering the age of majority from the traditional 21 are already in effect in some states. Youths in Vermont and Tennessee now legally become adults at age 18. And lower-majority bills are also moving through a number of other legislatures, including those of New Jersey, California, Massachusetts, Illinois and New York.

The age of 21 became the age of legal adulthood in the far recesses of history. Some historians say its widespread acceptance dates from the early middle ages, when 21 was deemed the age a young knight was strong enough to wear heavy armor. But whatever its genesis, a majority-at-21 law was usually enacted to protect young people from the hazards and risks of adulthood.

Along these lines, many societies adopted codes to prevent anyone under the age of 21 from becoming encumbered with legal responsibilities such as contracting for numerous services, borrowing money or making wills.

In the U.S., many states also wrote laws to shield youths from "vices"; in Michigan, for example, those under 21 currently can't bet on horses, purchase alcoholic beverages or smoke in public places.

Such protective codes, however, have in many cases created economic hardship for those under 21 — particularly in the area of borrowing money. A typical example is the case of 20-year-old Diane Leja, a secretary at Detroit's Wayne State University. "I had a $2,100 used car all picked out with payments of $81 a month out of $400 a month I earn," she says — but, she adds, car dealers wanted her to come up with a cosigner for her loan.

"I tried every adult close to me in looking for a cosigner," Miss Leja says, "but they were all worried about accepting the payments in case I lost my job or something happened. So I'm stuck riding the bus."

On the surface, it would seem that Michigan's law to lower the legal age of majority to 18 as of next Jan. 1 will improve the economic lot of Miss Leja and others in the 18- to 21-year-old group. But will it?

Some Michigan creditors are already saying that young borrowers will find even greater restrictions after the state lowers the age of majority.

"Under the new law, we won't even be able to check the parents' financial ability unless they wish to be a party to the loan," says Robert E. Tobey, vice president of National Bank of Detroit's "Instalplan" department. "It'll all rest on the youth himself, and we'll have even less ground to go on. We're going to have to be super-careful."

Unions hit ecology movement

By BYRON E. CALAME
Dow Jones-Ottaway News
Fishing on Wisconsin's scenic Flambeau River has become more than a pastime for members of Local 119 of the Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers Union in Park Falls, Wis.

They're fishing to help save their jobs.

The state is pressing their employer, the Flambeau Paper Co., to clean up wastes the mill dumps into the river.

The local's 170 members, aiming to show that the wastes aren't hurting fish life, are reeling in some handsome catches. Then local president Lawrence Drexler, armed with pictures of their hauls and with signed reports on fishing conditions, goes before state officials to seek more time for the mill to comply with waste-treatment standards. Thus the local hopes to avoid a partial shutdown that would wipe out about 100 jobs.

"The fishing is excellent," insists the 48-year-old Drexler, who has been fishing on the river since he was eight years old. "It's just never been better."

While Local 119's efforts have failed so far to win any additional time, its campaign is a prime example of an "environmental backlash" that's spreading through organized labor, particularly at the grass-roots level.

Notwithstanding most national unions' official calls for protecting both the environment and employment, more and more local leaders across the country are teaming up with corporate management against conservationists and pollution-control authorities.

The labor leaders' aim: To preserve union members' jobs.

Some examples:

A United Steelworkers local in El Paso lobbied hard and successfully in the city council recently to help an American Smelting & Refining Co. plant to obtain more time in which to bring its air-cleanup equipment up to par; many of the plant's 1,000 employees faced possible layoffs.

Representatives of the Teamsters Union, Glass Bottle Blowers Association and Steelworkers helped in September to stymie efforts by New Jersey legislators to impose restrictions on nonreturnable containers; there were warnings that up to 30,000 jobs were threatened.

Local 1 of the United Papermakers and Paperworkers in Holyoke, Mass., has replaced its customary fall job-safety campaign with a drive "to save jobs by halting the ecology steamroller." Union officials contend a local paper company had to abolish more than 150 jobs this year because of the "excessive cost of a pollution-control system."

And building-trades union officials seeking a resumption of work on the cross-Florida barge canal hope to make President Nixon's decision to halt the construction an issue in next year's elections; more than 300 hardhats have been thrown out of work.

"Why pick on the poor workingman?" demands Robert Dalton, a Baltimore steelworkers member and Maryland State Senator who opposes restrictions on throwaway beverage containers.

A regional steel-union official toiling for the same cause declares, "hysteria is no substitute for bread and butter."

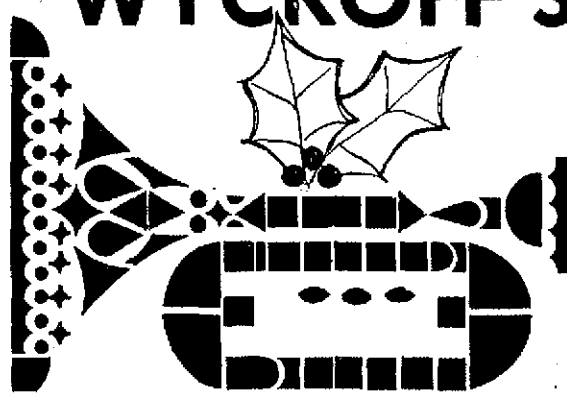

A Maine labor representative arguing for a new oil refinery along the state's picturesque coast maintains, "we can't trade off the welfare of human beings for the sake of scenery."

Union leaders at upper levels are also becoming more keenly aware of the environment-vs-jobs dilemma facing labor. Though American workers are exposed even more than most citizens to industrial pollution, United Auto Workers president Leonard Woodcock recently told a congressional subcommittee that "their economic circumstances require them to think first of jobs, paychecks and bread on the table."

In a recent letter to President Nixon, Joseph Tonelli, national head of the Pulp and Paper Union, urged the government to avoid imposing "do-it-yourself demands" on the paper industry because "the cost . . . will be too heavy a burden for management to bear."
